Huron voters say yes and no to two tax proposals

Huron School District officials were grateful for the largest voter turnout last week in the district's history, but were unhappy with the defeat of one of the two millage proposals.

School Supt. Curtis D. Bartz said rejection Dec. 10, by voters of a 4.50-mill proposal to improve educational programs will mean a continuation of the shortened 5-hour school day and minimal course offering for students.

A total of 2,244 school district voters turned out for the school election. They gave their approval to the first proposal on the ballot, a 4.47-mill additional levy for one year that will enable Huron schools to maintain their current educational level, Bartz explained.

The 4.47-mill proposal passed by a 1,215-1,029 margin, but the second 4.50-mill proposal was defeated 1,172-1,050, a slim 122 votes, he said. Although he said the school district was grateful for passage of the first millage proposal, he expressed his disappointment with the defeat of the second levy.

"Maintenance and other repairs for our buildings will again have to be placed at the bottom of our priority list. Our athletic and extra-curricular program will be limited," he explained.

The superintendent said many parents did an "outstanding" job of informing district residents of the financial need for the two millage proposals prior to the election.

"They worked tirelessly and were rewarded with the highest voter turnout in Huron's history," he pointed out. "Unfortunately, the goal of an adequate educational program will not be realized until additional millage is passed."

Bartz blamed the defeat of the 4.50-mill levy on the "emotional poverty among senior citizens, although he said tax relief is available for that group.

He commented: "We must continue to help our citizen realize that the school is not the appropriate place to fight inflation."

Because of lack of funds, only varsity athletics — boy's basketball, girl's volleyball and boy's wrestling — will be open to students this winter, Bartz said.

In the spring, girl's softball, boy's baseball and boy's and girl's track, all on the varsity level, will be approved for student participation, he said.

Last fall, with all sports cut back, ninth grade football and the girl's junior varsity basketball program were paid for by the local Boosters Club, the superintendent explained.

The 4.47-mill levy approved by voters Dec. 10 will be up for renewal next June. Only special state legislation this year allowed favorable results of the special election to generate funds from this year's tax bills. That levy was turned down by voters last June.

Also coming up for renewal next June is a 14.35-mill levy now being used for operational purposes, Bartz said.

For what period of time the 4.47-mill and 14.35-mill proposals will be requested will be decided next year by the Huron school board. Also, whether the defeated 4.50-mill levy will again be brought before school district voters will be up to the board.

Currently, Huron School District residents are paying 29.47 mills for school operation, exclusive of debt retirement.

Ex-animal control officer awarded backpay by court

A Romulus animal control officer, who was fired Dec. 8, 1978, by Mayor William M. Oakley after less than three months on the job, was awarded a retroactive wage settlement by a Wayne County hearing officer.

Bob G. Anderson, assistant corporation counsel, ruled that Raymond Block was entitled to receive back pay, based on the difference between what was paid to him in workmen's compensation benefits and what he would have received in wages from the city up to Oct. 1, 1979.

Anderson based his ruling on evidence presented at a hearing Oct. 17, 1979 in his office. Block is represented by Noel Keane, a Dearborn lawyer.

In his ruling, the corporation counsel said evidence indicated that Block "... was not informed of his rights or benefits in connection with his employment with the City of Romulus."

He said Block's job performance "... had little or nothing to do with the circumstances of his termination."

Anderson said that Block, as a CETA employee, should have been informed by the city of his rights and benefits. He found that circumstances of Block's discharge did not conform to the expressed intent of CETA regulations.

Block, in his testimony, had contended he was fired for political reasons because he did not provide written statements to the city on the alleged wrongdoings of his superior.

Anderson had terminated the October hearing in his office after hearing testimony of several witnesses, requesting that Keane and Charles Lowther, Romulus city attorney, work out an agreement acceptable to both sides.

Lowther later contacted Anderson and said both sides were "miles apart" and could not agree on a settlement. The city attorney's request for another hearing was opposed by Keane, who asked Anderson to render a ruling based on the first hearing. He reminded Anderson that he had promised to base his legal opinion on testimony presented at the October hearing. Anderson complied with Keane's request and gave his opinion Dec. 7.

Up in flames

A predawn explosion at a Clark tank farm in Taylor sent some 1 million gallons of gasoline up in smoke and destroyed six nearby mobile homes. The explosion, blamed on a faulty valve that allowed gasoline fumes to escape, occurred at about 3:30 a.m. Saturday. Taylor Police, supported by officers from neighboring communities, evacuated residents from their homes within a mile radius of the tank farm, located at Ecorse and Beech Daly roads. It took fire fighters some 24 hours to bring the fire under control, and a flame-smothering foam, used to combat the fire, had to be brought in from as far away as Canada during the day-long "battle." CUFA: What we have learned

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer
D.G. FASSETT
ANP Managing Editor

CUFA: A joke without a punchline.

CUFA: An unresolved riddle.

CUFA: A cruel hoax!

A hoax perpetrated on thousands of people who believed — believed that government could effectively address the problems of the poor, the elderly, and the handicapped.

Communities United for Action — CUFA, the step-child of the federal Community Services Administration (CSA), is not alone in the world. Across our nation, thousands of other CUFA's, or Community Action Agencies (CAA), are working to try and alleviate the suffering of our low-income and disadvantaged citizens.

But, CUFA, the agency which has taken Western Wayne County to its bosom, has provided nothing but heart-burn.

Where government had hoped to create an agency to generate pride, responsibility and trained workers ready to accept their place in society, it has instead, created only fraud, abuse of power, nepotism, and people more dedicated to greed than to the community.

And today, CUFA serves best as an example proving mankind's problems cannot be solved only by a mass infusion of dollars.

In the beginning there was a need. But nearly a decade has passed and the need still remains with only a few highly placed officials and a handful of the poor and disadvantaged having ever benefited from the grand federal experiment to modify human behavior.

To conclude the experiment a failure would be premature. But to conclude there is hope is wishful thinking.

Founded on the premise that a trained minority could assist and inspire other hard-core unemployed, CUFA set to the task of accomplishing this nearly impossible goal. And while the theory may have been valid, its application has proved faulty.

During CUFA's evolution, and the arrival of unsophisticated personnel to the ranks of leadership, carefully thought out programs were destroyed by careless and incompetent management.

What CUFA should have become, soon gave way to what it has become, a private club for the financial gain of insiders.

While we have consistently heard that it was a lack of federal funds responsible for the near demise of CUFA, that argument has little basis in fact.

Mere money is not the cause of the problem, nor is it the solution.

Perhaps, it was those federal funds thrown haphazardly at local problems and unmonitored by government which created the atmosphere ripe for the festering growth of the spectacle called CUFA.

Today at CUFA, officials are working diligently for the first time. But the target of those efforts is not the problems at hand, but rather it is this newspaper for its disclosure of CUFA's miserably mismanaged programs.

Following ANP's four-part series on CUFA, local, state and federal employees active in operation and monitoring of CUFA have been threatened with discipline for having the courage to speak out on CUFA's predicament.

But to silence dissent is not the answer.

To search out solutions is essential.

The federal government's grand experiment is on the brink of failure because one basic ingredient in the recipe for success was missing.

Time.

Time for the federal government to periodically reassess its rules and regulations. Time for board members to analyze prospective programs allowing a choice rather than a knee-jerk acceptance of any dollars that fall their way. Time to train personnel. Time for the monitoring of programs on a regular basis. Time to carefully select people to lead CUFA. And time simply for people to care about people.

However, the intent of a news story is to report. The intent of an editorial is to propose solutions, and these are ours.

CUFA's federally mandated 36-member board of directors should be a more manageable size, 10 or fewer, thus eliminating a frequent lack of quorum, power politics, lack of interest, and executive officers' domination.

A staff Certified Public Accountant with total authority over fiscal matters should be hired. The cost of this position should be more than offset by savings derived.

Strong anti-nepotism rules coupled with rigid educational requirements for top job positions must be imposed and enforced by the local agency.

Federal regulations must be rewritten to force prime funding agencies to defund programs when necessary, and allow for the rechanneling of those funds to local civic organizations such as the Jaycees who have demonstrated an ability to manage similar projects.

William McGill, CUFA Board Chairman, should resign from that post he has held far too long. His sanction of the hiring of fired executive director Jean Conyers, from an Indiana sister community action agency, is indication that McGill has little interest in CUFA's welfare.

CUFA has in time been allowed to become an organization where the self-interested have led the disinterested.

Time is essential. It is now, citizens outraged by CUFA's callous disregard for its people, must phone or write their elected public officials demanding problems be resolved.

Without your input, CUFA will continue on... and on... and on...

U-M study finds

Jailings reinforce support payment system

In Flint one in seven divorced fathers who are under orders to make "child support" payments to their estranged families are sentenced to jail terms for failure to make the payments.

The Flint area was one focal point of a study of Michigan's child support system, conducted by University of Michigan law Prof. David L. Chambers. In a few other Michigan counties, he found the rate of jailing even higher than Flint's. "In many counties on any given day," said Chambers, "more men are in jail for failing to pay support than are there for any other jailable offense."

The men are jailed as a result of the efforts of an agency known as the Friend of the Court, which oversees all aspects of the child support system in each Michigan county, including issuance of reminders and warnings to non-paying fathers.

"Because of this unique agency and its industrious work—and only in smaller part because of the jailings—Michigan collects an average of more child support per case than any other state in the nation," according to Chambers. "In most states, the custodial parent not receiving welfare has no agency to turn to. She has to hire an attorney to track down the father—an expensive and generally ineffective approach."

Chambers examined Michigan's child support arrangement in a book, "Making Fathers Pay—The Enforcement of Child Support," released Dec. 4 by the University of Chicago Press. The book is the culmination of a 5-year study by Chambers of Child support collections in 28 Michigan counties. The study was funded by grants from the National Science Foundation, U-M Law School and the Center for Studies in Criminal Justice at the University of Chicago.

Chambers' study found that counties with a "self-starting" enforcement system—which routinely notifies fathers when they fall behind in child support payments—coupled with a substantial rate of jailing, collected support at especially high rates.

In Genesee County (including the City of Flint), where both tactics are used, the payment rate averages about 74 percent of everything owed, and the rate of payment was found to actually increase over a 6-year period following divorce. Among the 28 counties in the U-M study, the one with the highest rate of payment was Barry County, which collected 86 percent of everything owed.

By contrast, in Dane County, Wis., in the 1960s, where the agency which collects child support had no enforcement powers, the average payment rate was about 30 percent, and payments were found to decline considerably over the 6-year period after divorce.

But Chambers is critical of Michigan's system of jailing child support violators.

"Most of the men who end up in jail are alcoholics or men with long employment problems—the men about whom there should be the greatest doubts of their capacity to pay. The hearings that lead to jailings last only 3 or 4 minutes and include little serious inquiry into capacity to pay," the U-M professor said.

Recommending consideration of alternative means of inducing payments, Chambers says that "if effective alternatives exist—less restrictive alternatives—than jailing—it would be immoral for government to continue to rely on jailing."

On a national basis, Chambers supports the idea of mandatory wage deductions that follow men wherever they work as an alternative to the present system.

"Short of this, another possibility is for states to create full-time collection and enforcement offices, comparable to Friends of the Court, with courts empowered to use sentences to jail, but rarely actually doing so," he said.

Chambers' study concludes that the American system of providing child support proves unsatisfactory to both divorced parents, especially those in low-income brackets.

"Because of the obvious plight of the 'single mother,' American governments have developed two systems of income support. The first takes the form of court-ordered child support. The second is welfare. Under each system, enormous numbers of dollars change hands, but most of the people affected by the system are unhappy. Fathers and taxpayers feel they pay out too much; mothers receive too little to survive in decency," he wrote.

One factor often overlooked in the attempt to induce fathers to make payments, according to Chambers, is that even full payments would not be enough to provide the same standard of living that the child experienced prior to divorce.

For most women, child support at best "can mean the difference between living below the poverty line and living at a very modest standard of living somewhat above it," wrote Chambers.

"How can a higher standard of living be assured for women raising children on their own?...Answers in full must lie outside the child support system—most probably through expanded employment opportunities for women. While default in payments may justly be seen as a problem, full payment of child support can only be part of the solution."

One portion of the study focused on the characteristics of men who paid or failed to pay child support in Genesee County.

Chambers found that it is difficult to predict payment rates based on such characteristics as race, religion or occupation. The study showed little variation in payments rates, for example, for unskilled auto-workers, skilled blue-collar workers or managerial and professional workers, although the payment rate for unemployed workers was about 25 percent lower than that of regularly employed men.

The study revealed some significant differences relating to age, length of marriage and circumstances of pregnancy.

"We found that men married to women who were pregnant at marriage pay less than others; we also found lower payments by men whose marriage lasted less than a year," Chambers wrote. "We found that the younger a woman at the birth of her first child, the less well her husband paid after divorce. A third of the men in our sample married women who were 18 or under at the birth of their first child, and this group paid substantially less well than the men whose wives were 23 or over at the first birth."

The U-M professor emphasizes that, in human terms, the costs of jailing fathers who default on their child support payments usually outweigh the benefits.

Each year more than 4,000 men are sentenced to Michigan jails as a result of actions taken by the Friends of the Court.

"America's county jails are among the most vicious institutions of incarceration. Often jammed with far more inmates than they were built to hold, they rely on forced inactivity and breed bodily and sexual assault," Chambers said. "If Michigan's aggressiveness were replicated in the rest of the county, we would find courts sentencing 100,000 American parents for non-payment of support each year."

In the Genesee County sampling, the U-M study found that, after being jailed, significant numbers of men leave town and do not pay again.

"The children whose fathers flee not only lose the money, they lose a tie with the father and quite possibly with other members of the father's family," Chambers wrote. "For some men who flee, their non-payment before leaving town will not have been because they did not care. They may have been truly unable to pay, but fearful of being jailed anyway."

Jailing also intrudes on close feelings between father and child, Chambers observed. "Especially for those children whose fathers are most conscious of jail's possibility, the hovering image in the father's mind of a clanging cell door may alter the tone of the relationship between him and his child. At some level, the relationship may shift from one based solely on affection to one based in significant part of fear."

LL raffle prize goes to Armstead

Myrie Armstead of Romulus won first prize of $250 in the first of a series of 50-50 raffle drawings held by the Romulus North Little League recently at Romulus City Hall.

With the exception of December, the baseball group's Board of Directors plans to hold the raffle on a monthly basis.

Charles Glover, league vice-president, said the 50 tickets for the January drawing will be available at $10 each from any board member, beginning Jan. 1, 1980.

Proceeds of the raffles will be added to funds raised by other ventures to pay for operation of the league.

Donations from area residents, he said, are paying for the modern Little League baseball complex north of Beverly Park near Henry Ruff and Beverly roads.

Two of the proposed five baseball diamonds now are constructed and boast separate fences, block dugouts, grass infields and outfields, electronic scoreboards and ample parking. Donations to the league's Grand Slam Building Club have made all of this possible, Glover said.

When completed, all five baseball fields will be lighted and have paved parking, but a centralized concession building will not be built for 6 to 8 years, he said.

A focal point of the baseball complex will be a giant billboard displaying the names of individuals and members who have donated to the Grand Slam Building Club. Persons interested in becoming involved, or who wish to make contributions, are asked to contact Jack Moores, president, at 9608 Marc, Romulus 48174.

All applicants accepted will receive complete training, uniforms, compensation for each fire run and serve at Station No. 3, located at Wayne and Ecorse roads.

The first 'scoop'

Most folks have ceremonial groundbreakings with a silver spade, but the officials of Space World, Inc., apparently felt that the kickoff of their construction project rated a bigger scoop. Dr. Philip R. Austin took the seat of this large front-end loader to dig that first bit of earth in Huron Township Friday. The ceremony launched a $32 million theme park which will be situated on 132 acres of land next to I-275. Space World, which will carry a futuristic space theme, is the first park of its kind in the state. (Photo by Jay Young).

A family 'tradition'

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Politics, personal success and being in the public limelight have been woven into the fabric of the Rush family for more than 200 years.

Ed Rush, at 33, is a well-known Romulus florist who was elected to City Council in the general election last November. His fourth great-grandfather, Dr. Benjamin Rush, signed the Declaration of Independence and is regarded by the American Psychiatry Association as the "father of American psychiatry."

Dr. Rush opposed slavery in the American colonies and was in the forefront of organized efforts to free the slaves. A graduate of the College of New Jersey, now Princeton, at the tender age of 15, Dr. Rush later became the first surgeon general of the United States and also was appointed treasurer of the U.S. Mint in 1799.

Dr. Rush's son, Richard, was ambassador to England and France and Secretary of State under President John Adams. He helped establish the Rush-Bagot Treaty, which set boundary lines between the United States and Canada.

The Romulus councilman's great-grandfather, Peter Rush, and his wife, Sarah, were actors performing on the stage of Ford's Theater in Washington, D.C., the night President Abraham Lincoln was shot fatally by John Wilkes Booth. When Peter moved to Detroit to live in later life, he was elected city controller.

Ed started off early in life in being at the right place at the right time. When only 11 years old, he was chosen to present a framed copy of the Declaration of Independence at ceremonies dedicating the new City-County Building in downtown Detroit.

Rush was elected to council mostly on the strength of the publicity surrounding his lawsuit against the city in September of 1978, when he was still a private citizen with a more than normal interest in city government.

He began attending City Council sessions on a regular basis as sort of "people's watchdog" after taking an active part in opposing the city-wide re-assessment of property in 1977.

Rush joined with many other Romulus citizens who were against the 1977 re-assessment, preferring instead to see it done the following year. By state law, every Michigan community must be re-assessed on property values at least every eight years; 1978 would have been the eighth year.

"I was strongly opposed to the city hiring the county to perform the re-assessment when the county by law gets a percentage of taxes collected," Rush declared. "The city could have hired a private firm, but instead chose to follow the recommendation of Dave Krause, the city assessor, and hire the county."

After that confrontation, Rush was hooked on watching what went on in city hall. He questioned why the Board of Review, a body of appointed city residents who review tax reduction requests, held closed meetings.

Rush got an opinion from the State Attorney General's Office, which held that the Board of Review must hold open sessions for the general public.

In September 1978, Rush listened to a tape recording of a closed session of the City Council which was announced as a discussion on negotiations between the city and with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. About 40 city employees belonged to the union organization.

He discovered that the council had diverged and had discussed water and sewer funds, among other things. He filed a lawsuit against council, charging it with violating the recently enacted State Open Meetings Act.

After several court hearings, council heeded the recommendation of the city attorney and agreed to pay Rush's legal fees, if he would stop the suit, in the face of an injunction issued by a Wayne County Circuit Court judge ordering a halt to such closed sessions.

Deputy found dead

Patrolman Frank W. Zoltowski, 36, of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, was found dead at his home Saturday morning of an apparent heart attack.

Services were held Monday afternoon at the Baum Funeral Home in Romulus. Burial was in the Michigan Memorial Cemetery in Flat Rock.

According to his superiors, Zoltowski had complained of chest pains to his wife, Ronnie, earlier in the morning. When she failed to get him on the telephone a short time later, she called his headquarters at the out-county division of the Sheriff's Department.

A scout car was dispatched to Zoltowski's home in Romulus where officers found him dead.

Zoltowski had served with the old Romulus Police Department for a year prior to the beginning of police protection service in 1971 by the Sheriff's Department. He then began service as a patrolman with the Sheriff's Department and had worked for that agency until his death. Before becoming a Romulus police officer, Zoltowski had also worked briefly for the Woodhaven Police Department.

Rush admits that publicity given the case was an influential factor in making him more well known to Romulus residents and in his subsequent election to council.

Proof of his involvement in life came last year when Rush was awarded a certificate from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department for his assistance in aiding a woman being accosted by a man in a car.

Driving in his car not far from his business establishment, Rush's Flowers, 30617 Henry Ruff Road, Rush noticed a woman jumping from a car and running. He stopped, let her get into his car, and mentally jotted down the license number of the fleeing car, driven by the attacker. His information resulted in the arrest of the man.

In 1970 when Romulus changed from a village to a city, Rush ran "half-heartedly" for council and lost. But, his subsequent participation in the re-assessment issue, the Board of Review opinion, and the lawsuit on closed council sessions cemented his desire to see better city government in Romulus.

"I believe Romulus residents should be represented on council by someone who digs into issues and researches them, someone who does not take matters at face value.

"I believe the public is entitled to elected officials who make it their duty to see that public money is spent properly and who make it their responsibility to account for their actions to their constituents," he emphasized.

Rush explained that he is never satisfied with the "status quo" and that nothing in this world cannot be improved upon.

He also explained his philosophy of the relationship between the city administration and council.

"The city administration should realize that the council should and can be the most important asset to our community. Any decisions made by the city administration should be discussed with council. It's time that our city government is operated so that problems are foreseen and taken care of before they happen.

"It's time that our city government quit operating on a crisis-oriented basis," he stressed.

Rush and his wife, Sharon, were married in 1970 when she was supervisor of nursing at Wayne County General Hospital. Now the mother of two children, Erica, 6, and Edward, 4, she assists her husband in running the florist business.

His grandfather, Peter, owned and operated three floral shops in Detroit and moved to Romulus to open another business location in 1932. His grandfather ran the three floral shops in Detroit until 1955. In all, the Rush family has owned and operated floral establishments for the last 75 years.

When not working at the flower shop or tending to his council duties, Rush enjoys golf, scuba diving and racquetball.

The new councilman was born in Detroit and lived briefly in Wayne before moving to Romulus in 1950. He attended Michigan State University until 1967 when he came home to run the family floral shop in Romulus.

All in all, Rush admits his life is a busy one, but that's the way he likes it.

Since he began his new council duties, he has made it his business to speak up whenever he feels the occasion calls for it. Only a few sessions into his new political career, Rush already has taken on Councilman Jimmie Raspberry, an outspoken critic and self-appointed people's advocate, on several issues.

His actions have made it plain that he is not afraid of confrontation — in fact, he enjoys it.

It seems evident that from here on, Romulus council sessions, with Ed Rush in attendance, will be anything but dull.

Capili receives degree from MSU

Albert Capili of Edgedale Road, Belleville was among 1,700 degree candidates at Michigan State University in East Lansing at the conclusion of the fall term.

Capili is scheduled to receive his bachelor of science degree in biology.

Also on the college scene: Kimberly Alspaugh, a Belleville resident, was a featured performer at "Folks Songs of the Four Seasons," the Lesley College Collegium Winter Concert, held Dec. 9.

Ms. Alspaugh, a member of the Class of 1983 at Lesley College, located in Cambridge, Mass., is majoring in early childhood education.

Belleville collegian William S. Woodby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Woodby of Martinsville Road, was among 18 Michigan Technological University students to participate in a Nuclear Reactor Experiment at the University of Michigan Nov. 26-27.

The group performed four experiments on the two megawatt reactors at the Ann Arbor University, including control rod calibration, power level determination and temperature coefficient measurements.

Woodby is a senior majoring in electrical engineering.

Randy Pichan of Romulus was awarded a varsity letter for football at Grand Valley State College by athletic director George McDonald, during an Awards Night Banquet Dec. 3.

The varsity letter was Pichan's first in football at Grand Valley State. The team had a 4-5 season, but lead the NAIA in passing with 290.6 yards per game. Grand Valley finished second in the NCAA Division II with their passing average.

Six Belleville-Romulus residents were slated to have received degrees during commencement ceremonies Dec. 16 at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Degree candidates included Randolph Gear of South Wayne Road, Romulus, master of science;

Christine Hudson of Edgedale Drive, Belleville, master of arts; Barbara Louise Howe of Hancock, Belleville bachelor of science; Barbara Rogalle Miller of Harmony Lane, Belleville, juris doctor; Dennis Arthur Miller of Lakepoint Boulevard, Belleville, doctor of philosophy; and Wayne Milton Miller of Quirk Road, Belleville, master of science in engineering.

Two Belleville residents will be among graduates at the Dec. 12 commencement ceremony for the State Technical Institute and Rehabilitation Center in Lansing.

John McAninch of Belleville completed studies in drafting, while Thomas McAninch studied printing at the facility, which provides vocational and technical training for disabled adults.

Voluntary gasoline conservation or...

Although some Americans apparently still believe the energy crisis is a hoax, the Highway Users Federation reports that recurring fuel supply disruptions are real and that drivers must curb their use of gasoline without crippling the nation's mobility.

One way to cut gasoline use is through voluntary conservation. Another way is to hit motorists in the head with a two-by-four in the form of a huge increase in federal gasoline taxes.

Voluntary conservation can and does work, as shown by the continuing leveling off in gasoline demand. Car buyers' demands for greater fuel efficiency — and Detroit's response — deserve much of the credit. There is evidence that unnecessary auto travel is being cut, with the average car being driven less miles this year than last.

Mass transit ridership is up, car and vanpool programs are expanding, and truck fleets across the country

Bring in the clowns

On Dec. 10 the Wayne County 4-H graduated 16 new clowns. The members, 6th through 12th graders, participated in a 7-week course where they learned basic make-up application, magic tricks, balloon sculpture and the art of pantomime. The course ended with some actual clowning experience at Hope Convalescence Home where they performed skits and did balloon sculptures. The graduating clowns were Linda Willman, Jim Willman, Dale Schultz, Scott Jagger, Mike Wilkerson, Mike Priskorn, Kathy Schmidt, Michelle Seyfarth, Carol Schoenheit, Jenny Leska, John Sillampaa and Bror Stark.

Detroit wants split in senior programs

A request by Detroit's Mayor Coleman Young to have the city's senior citizen funding sources separated from Wayne County is meeting with vigorous opposition from a number of governmental agencies, including Wayne County's Human Resources Committee, chaired by Commissioner Martha G. Scott.

Young is seeking Area Agency status for Detroit rather than continue receiving state and federal funds under the umbrella operation of the joint Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency on Aging. The total budget received from all sources, according to Fred Ferris, director of the Area Agency, is in excess of $7 million.

Scott said the mayor's request would mean a needless duplication of staffing, creating additional expenses. Peter Kok, director of the State Office on Services to the Aging, said that Mayor Young had submitted a letter of intent to seek separate status in October, and an application package was returned to his office shortly after for processing.

"As of today," Kok said, "we have received no formal application."

Action of the Human Resources Committee follows similar action taken earlier by the Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency Board, charged with dispersing funds, and the Wayne County Office on Aging, which prepares and administers senior citizen programs for Wayne County.

Under the present system the designated Area Agency is provided with state and federal funds. These funds are then distributed 70 percent to the Detroit Mayor's Senior Citizen Commission and 30 percent to the Wayne County Office on Aging Commission. According to a letter from Julius F. Otten, chairman of the Detroit-Wayne County Area Agency Board, Mayor Young wants Detroit to become the designated Area Agency by the fall of 1980.

Barbara Lock, a member of the Area Agency Board and County Aging Commission, and Colleen Minter, chairperson for the Wayne County Commission on Aging, asserted "there will not be enough money to duplicate administrative services in the event Detroit is approved as its own Area Agency. The Detroit-Wayne County designated agency and the Aging Commission have done an excellent job and should be allowed to continue," they said.

Ms. Minter added: "Both the Area Agency Board and Aging Commission have gone on record as unanimously opposing Detroit's request for separate status. However, if it is granted, out-county must seek its own Area Agency status, immediately, in order to maintain service to the nearly 115,000 seniors living outside of Detroit."

County Commissioner Jackie L. Currie of Detroit, another member of the Human Resources Committee, said the mayor's request has no obvious advantages and can only lead to a less efficient program.

"The seniors will suffer in the long run," she added.

A motion by Ms. Currie and supported by Commissioner Kay Beard of Inkster resulted in the Human Resources Committee's unanimous decision opposing Young's action.

Richard E. Manning, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, in answer to Otten's letter, notified all out-county community mayors and supervisors of Mayor Young's move, adding: "It appears he (Young) is further dividing the county by his actions to separate the area Substance Abuse programs, proposed transportation package, resistance to sewer improvements for out-county communities and the senior citizen projects."

Christmas Star ...revisited

By RITA C. BOBOWSKI
Smithsonian News Service

Nearly 2,000 years ago, the three wise men saw a light in the heavens, signaling to them an event of the utmost importance. In the words of the Book of Matthew: "There came wise men from the east to Jerusalem, saying, where is he that is born King of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and are come to worship him."

The brief mention of the Star of Bethlehem has intrigued scientists, historians and theologians for hundreds of years because, other than descriptions in the New Testament, there are no other known accounts documenting this apparently short-term celestial phenomenon.

Much speculation exists over whether there really was such a star, according to Von Del Chamberlain, an astronomer at the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum. In an annual public lecture, Chamberlain traces the various theories advanced to explain the Star of Bethlehem.

"Most of us assume that the Christmas star was an extraordinary sight to behold," he said. "It may not have been so spectacular. Actually, it may have been an event which only professional star gazers—such as the Magi—would even have noticed. And, perhaps what the wise men saw was not really a single star at all."

One theory holds that the Christmas star was a comet. Early records kept by the Chinese mention a comet without a tail visible in the spring of 4 B.C., a date which fits the most recent estimates of the year in which Jesus was born. (Scholars now believe that Jesus was born between 8 and 4 B.C. Since our present calendar system was not instituted until the 6th century A.D., more than 500 years after his birth, errors in calculation are possible.)

But comets move slowly from night to night through the starry sky. Moreover, comets were believed by the ancients to be omens of impending doom, not harbingers of glad tidings.

Another theory has it that the star might have been an unusually bright meteor, called a fireball. As fireballs flash through the atmosphere, they burn with an intense but fleeting light. But ancient records and modern knowledge indicate that fireballs are fairly commonplace occurrences lasting only a few seconds.

A third and more tenable explanation is that the Star of Bethlehem was a "nova," which means literally "new star." Actually, novas are not new but old stars that have reached the end of their evolution and have become unstable. These exploding stars abruptly rise to great brilliance, then lose their luminance slowly over a period of weeks.

"This theory has potential," Chamberlain said. "A nova could be bright enough and last long enough to lead the wise men on a long journey to Bethlehem."

"In addition," he continued, "a nova would certainly be the most dramatic explanation. What could be more exciting than to have a 'new star' appear on the night that Christ was born?"

One recent study of ancient Chinese and Korean records indicated that a nova may have appeared in 5 B.C., but there is no definitive account that such an event took place.

The theory most widely accepted by astronomers today was put forth in the 1600s by German astronomer Johannes Kepler. Kepler suggested that the Christmas star was really a "conjunction" of planets.

A conjunction occurs when two or more planets appear to pass by each other in the sky. Using ancient sky records, astronomers have verified that the planets Jupiter and Saturn appeared in conjunction not once but three times between 7 and 6 B.C.—a relatively rare phenomenon.

A conjunction would explain the lack of other records, since it most likely would have gone unnoticed except by those, like the Magi, who were trained to watch the sky.

A conjunction takes on even more significance when viewed from an astrological standpoint. The ancient astrologers would have considered conjunctions to be highly symbolic events. To them, conjunctions of Jupiter and Saturn held special significance—Jupiter, symbolic of the king of the gods, and Saturn, said to be the protector of the peoples of the eastern Mediterranean.

Voluntary conservation or...

Motorist compliance with the 55-mph speed limit is saving an estimated 1.5 billion gallons a year, and compliance by more motorists is expected in the future.

Despite these voluntary savings, the idea of slapping a huge federal tax on gasoline has emerged again, this time as a result of the strife in Iran. Such punitive tax schemes would raise immense new revenues for the federal government at the expense of motorists, who use about one-quarter of all the energy in this country.

Naturally, those least able to pay would get hurt the most (car ownership statistics show that 71 percent of families earning $4,000 to $5,000 a year own a motor vehicle). Moreover, big gas tax increases are inflationary. For example, the Council of Economic Advisers estimates that a 50-cent-per-gallon tax would boost inflation by 6 to 7 percent over 2 to 3 years, as higher motoring costs work their way through the entire economy.

Before poleaxing the motorist, someone should tell him how much gasoline he needs to save. The President has the authority to announce mandatory targets for energy cutbacks under the terms of the Emergency Energy Conservation Act, which requires states to make their own plans to meet the targets.

But the urgency of the current situation calls for immediate action. Therefore, it is appropriate for the President to call for voluntary conservation measures first, allowing the states to come up with a variety of programs and incentives for voluntary conservation, such as establishing special lanes for multiple-occupancy vehicles, extra mass transit, and car and vanpool programs.

Those who sell voluntary energy conservation short also sell the American public short. There are ways to get the attention of the motorist without hitting him in the head with a two-by-four.

Seven cases reported

Pediatrician explains Reye's Syndrome

The reappearance of Reye's Syndrome in Michigan this fall, with seven cases reported so far at the University of Michigan's C.S. Mott Children's Hospital, has again raised the concern of parents.

More than 60 cases of the often-fatal syndrome, which afflicts children under 16, were reported in Michigan last year. Thirty of the cases were treated at Mott Hospital under the care of a special Reye's team, headed by U-M pediatrician Dr. Joseph Baublis.

Following are answers to the major questions asked by parents about the syndrome, which has been identified with greater frequency in recent years.

What is Reye's Syndrome?
"The chances of getting Reye's Syndrome are small, about one in 5,000 to one in 10,000," Dr. Baublis said. "The Syndrome is a symptom complex in which there is a combination of liver dysfunction and swelling of the brain. The disease is associated with infectious childhood diseases including chicken pox and influenza.

"The thing you want to guard against is accepting a child's illness and subsequent period of delirium as being normal. Any child who is recovering from an infection, a common viral disease of some sort, who undergoes a period of vomiting and then becomes delirious — wild, combative, irrational, acting intoxicated — should be suspect. This child should not be assumed to be normal, or oversedated from medicines.

"Such a child should be considered possibly to have Reye's Syndrome by parents and physician. If this is done early enough, the child can be monitored so that many of the complications can be managed so that a lot of the early deaths can be prevented."

What actually happens to the child?

"Recent studies have shown the presence of a substance in the blood of children with Reye's Syndrome which can damage the mitochondria in cells throughout the body. This deprives these cells of many vital functions. For example, the liver becomes unable to function normally. This causes impurities to accumulate in the blood that otherwise would be removed. The impurities in the blood have a toxic effect on the brain, causing it to swell," Dr. Baublis said.

"Even though the liver function is markedly impaired, after a period of three to four days it is able to restore itself to a relatively normal function. This happens in the normal course of the disease with no specific treatment. What our therapy is aimed at is supporting the function and integrity of the brain so that during the short period of time when the liver is not able to function well the brain doesn't swell to a point where it cuts off its own blood supply and dies."

What are the chances for recovery?

"There are three potential outcomes — (1) about 60 to 70 percent of the patients will recover and be quite normal; (2) about 10 to 20 percent of the patients will die; (3) finally, in about 10 to 15 percent of the cases, there is the possibility that the patient will recover but the brain will be damaged. What we try to do is shift the odds to favor recovery," Dr. Baublis said.

Can't miracle drugs be developed to treat and prevent the disease?

"Survival of patients with Reye's Syndrome is not linked to any specific drug or medicine that is given. What is important is preventing deaths with Reye's Syndrome," Dr. Baublis said, "is an awareness by parents and a sensitivity by physicians called by parents to how the disease presents itself."

*Also important is access to hospitals and medical centers where proper tests can be done to confirm an impression of Reye's Syndrome. And, finally, the thing that makes the greatest difference of all is the availability of good pediatric intensive care to support the basic problems of these children."

What is the most serious feature of Reye's Syndrome?

"The one life-and-death problem that has to be coped with is increased intracranial pressure. The pressure of the brain against the skull. The brain in this disease is swollen and tends to enlarge and thereby cause damage to itself or death," Dr. Baublis said.

Gift giving tax aspects

Thinking of giving gifts this holiday season, either of cash or tangible assets? There may be a requirement to file gift tax returns, say the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, if the gift exceeds the level allowed.

A holiday present of up to $3,000 a year to each of your nieces and nephews can be made without paying a federal gift tax. If you and your spouse make the gifts together, this will increase your tax-free gift to $6,000 to each person. Depending on your prior gifts, it may be possible to give more to each person without incurring a gift tax. When in doubt, the CPAs say, check with a tax advisor for more details.

A special provision of the tax law governs gifts between spouses. Basically, a substantial amount of cash property can be transferred to a husband or a wife while still avoiding the payment of estate or gift taxes. Gift giving can be advantageous to businesses also, say the Michigan CPAs, if companies are careful in their usage.

When giving clients or customers an inexpensive novelty or specialty item, under $4 in worth and with the company name imprinted on it, it may be taken as a business gift and will not enter into the annual $25 per donee gift limit.

Holiday greeting cards with the company imprint also are a tax-deductible business expense, say the CPAs, as in a gift of packaged food or drink, but only if it is to be consumed later.

The same principle applies to tickets for performances or sport events. If the business client uses the tickets later, they are a gift. If you accompany him to the event, then it is an entertainment expense and not a gift.

Housing activity declines

A recently-released study by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), "Residential Construction in Southeast Michigan — First Six Months 1979", shows an approximate 16 percent decline in total building permits issued in the 7-county region.

The report, which compares housing activity during the first half of 1979 to activity during the first half of 1978, documents a significant decline in housing activity in five counties of southeast Michigan, with an increase in housing activity in only two counties.

"This decline in housing is due, in part, to the high cost of home mortgages," said Justine Barns, chairwoman of SEMCOG's Housing Subcommittee and Westland city councilman. "I expect to see that trend continue through the end of 1979, as many people simply cannot justify purchasing homes with loan interest rates as high as 13 percent."

A comparison of the first six months of 1979 shows housing activity decreasing primarily for detached single family units, which were down 20.3 percent. Multifamily activity slowed by only 3.1 percent.

Macomb County showed the highest decline in housing permits issued, down 1,119 permits from 3,525 in 1978 to 2,406 in 1979. On a percentage basis, Washtenaw County showed the highest drop — 58.9 percent — from 1,361 in 1978 to 559 in 1979.

Other counties recording a decline in authorized units include Livingston County, down 16.7 percent and Wayne County, down 8.8 percent.

St. Clair County appears to be holding its own only a slight decrease (0.8 percent) in housing units authorized, from 364 in 1978 to 361 in 1979.

Monroe County recorded a 23.2 percent increase in new units authorized, from 319 in 1978 to 398 in 1979. The only other county to show an increase was Oakland, which gained 2.3 percent from 4,466 permits in 1978 to 4,567 permits in 1979.

The top 10 communities in southeast Michigan for total new units authorized during the first six months of 1979 were Farmington Hills (820), Canton Township (553), Clinton Township (547), Troy (544), Avon Township (515), Waterford Township (419), Sterling Heights (398), Detroit ((379), Macomb Township (318) and Van Buren Township (268).

For 'heckling'

Commissioners blast Lt. Gov. Brickley

Michigan's lieutenant governor was admonished today by two Wayne County commissioners to quit his periodic slams at the beleaguered county's government and start helping to attain effective re-organization of the county's archaic management system.

Commissioners Alex Pilch of Dearborn and R. William Joyner of Plymouth challenged Lt. Gov. James H. Brickley to support the current petition drive to put the question of establishing a county-wide elected executive plan before the voters early next year.

"We need help, not heckling," the commissioners said.

Recently, the Lieutenant Governor was quoted extensively as being critical of the commission's budget actions and reiterated that reorganization is the bottom line in Wayne County's problems.

"We keep hearing and reading about Brickley's dictum, presumably on behalf of the Governor, that Wayne County's monstrosity of a governmental structure be re-shaped," Pilch said, "but what is he doing to help accomplish that? The so-called compromise he concocted with Mayor Coleman Young is a disaster, and it is questionable whether any meaningful bill will come out of the legislature to give voters a clear, understandable choice on how Wayne County government should be run."

Joyner added: "On the other hand, there is a method available under current state law that gives county citizens a straightforward, simple, direct voice on whether the county government should be headed by an elected executive.

"A petition drive is underway to give the voters that opportunity, hopefully in conjunction with the Presidential Primary next May, and we would be extremely happy to have Brickley — and the Governor — join us. We could use his backing instead of his brickbats and, with his help, I'm sure we can get the necessary signatures to put the matter on the ballot and get a decision from the people early in 1980."

"The charter method could take years, whereas the step we are advocating, under existing state law, is to have the voters choose next year whether they want their county government re-structured with an elected chief executive on top. Simple!" Pilch explained.

"We've collected about 32,000 signatures operating on a shoe string and with a rather loose-knit organization," said Robert Beeny, chairman of a Steering Committee composed of LWV representatives, Jaycees and the three commissioners. The petitions are labeled "PACE — Provide a County Executive."

"However, many hundreds of petition blanks were distributed, and there are likely some thousands more of names," he noted. "We urge anyone who has a petition, even though only partly filled out, to get it in to the Steering Committee in the next day or so we can determine just how many more names are needed." They can be sent to either commissioner at 726 City-County Building, Detroit 48226.

In Lansing, all the Wayne County re-organization attention is being focused on the charter commission method, Pilch said. Under the system, a charter commission would be elected, they would draft a charter and that would be submitted to the people for approval. If that failed, they would write another one and submit it. It should be noted that acceptance on first try is unlikely judging by Detroit's new charter a few years ago and Dearborn's this year. Both were rejected the first time, he added.

Energy solutions for state's seniors

While the rest of the country reels from soaring heating costs and reports of a severe winter ahead, Michigan — along with a few volunteers — is offering its senior citizens practical solutions to energy questions.

Fifteen VISTAs (Volunteers in Service to America) were recently appointed energy advisors for the Senior Energy Project. The project represents the first attempt in the country to offer educational programs to seniors on energy conservation.

The VISTAs, who serve in communities all across the state, have been directed to coordinate local energy information and resource centers for senior citizens. They will help senior citizens determine cost-effective methods for conserving energy, provide community education on energy, determine the existence of grants and loans available to those persons interested in improving the energy efficiency of their homes, as well as the availability of funds to supplement the energy budgets of low-income seniors.

A toll-free hot-line is available to all Michigan residents with energy-related questions. That number is 1-800-292-4704.

The Senior Energy Project is co-sponsored by ACTION, the Energy Administration, the Department of Commerce, the Office of Services to the Aging, the Department of Management and Budget and the Area Agencies on Aging.

With the addition of the 15 new energy-VISTAs, there presently are a total of 133 VISTA volunteers serving in Michigan. Approximately 4,500 serve in rural and urban poverty areas all over the United States. The volunteers work around such issues as legal rights, abused children and battered spouses, Indochinese refugees, migrant farmers, housing, education and health. Approximately 50 percent of all VISTAs serve in their own communities, and many of them are low-income.

During their year of service, VISTA volunteers receive a living allowance, paid health care, travel and training. At the end of service, each volunteer receives a readjustment allowance of $75 per month served (approximately $900).

VISTA is a part of ACTION, the federal agency for volunteer service. Other ACTION programs include the Peace Corps, Foster Grandparent Program, Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), Senior Companion Program and University Year for ACTION. For more information on VISTA or other ACTION programs, Michigan residents may call collect (313) 226-7928, or write ACTION, M-74 McNamara Federal Building, 477 Michigan Avenue, Detroit 48226.

"...JUST PLAIN TIRED"

"ALWAYS TIRED" IS NOT NATURAL

"Just plain tired." Not the good kind of muscle-tired that comes from spring cleaning, spring planting, or 18 holes of golf. That's natural, and rest cures it. But the always-tired kind of tired that makes you wake up in the morning wishing it were bedtime instead is NOT natural.

Low blood pressure? Poor circulation? Anemia? Emotional upset? Bored with life? Any one or all of these may go along with that "plain tired" feeling. It has been said that people with these symptoms usually live longer...or maybe it just SEEMS longer because they don't feel like doing much living. But these conditions are not CAUSES. They are symptoms, just as the tired feeling itself is a symptom.

The underlying cause, more often than not, is a slow-down in your personal life-cycle...an interference somewhere with the vital energy force carried by your nerves throughout your body.

CHIROPRACTIC RESTORES BALANCE

The term "bone-tired" may be more accurate than you think. It could be that your tired feeling is caused by a subluxated vertebra (spinal bone out of alignment) pressing or irritating a nerve.

The doctor of chiropractic specializes in "undamming" nerve supply. He locates the source of pressure or irritation on nerves (which most commonly occurs in the spine) and then makes the necessary adjustment so that nature's life-giving current of nerve energy flows freely again.

If you feel as though you were born tired, you're dull and listless, your appetite for life is gone, don't drag through one more dreary day. Check with your chiropractor. He can release the flow of life energy forces to restore balance to your personal life-cycle...to boost your vigor, promote your inner drive to action, and help you enjoy a sound body, vibrant health, and a full life once more...the way nature intended you should do.

'Save-a-life' on Dec. 30-31

Since 1974, the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross has sponsored the Save-A-Life Sunday program in an effort to prevent a potentially critical blood shortage. This year the program has been expanded to two days, Save-A-Life Days — Sunday, Dec. 30, and Monday, Dec. 31.

"Our blood centers will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on both days," said A. W. Shafer, MD, director, Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood Services. "We urge everyone between the ages of 17 (with parental permission) and 66 and in general good health to visit their local blood center, Dearborn Donor Center, on one of the Save-A-Life Days and make a donation of blood."

Blood donations, said Shafer, are traditionally reduced during the holiday season because many industries and businesses which supply much of the blood collected for patient needs are closed during the week between Christmas and New Year's Day. The decrease in donations, combined with the fact that just after New Year's Day there is a dramatic increase in elective surgery, could lead to a major shortage of blood.

"Our Save-A-Life program has been successful in the past and has helped avert a potentially serious problem," Shafer related.

The goal this year is to collect 1,000 units of blood each day for patients approximately 75 area hospitals in the county area, which includes Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, St. Clair and Washtenaw counties.

"Last year on Save-A-Life Sunday, the response was excellent. We feel sure that this year the number of donations will far exceed previous contributions as more people respond to the appeal to give a unit of blood to help supply the sick and injured," said Shafer.

To make an appointment to donate blood at the Dearborn Donor Center, call 274-3900. The Detroit Blood Center, 100 Mack Avenue, also will be open both days from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The phone number is 833-4440.

"I can't think of a more heartwarming way to start the new year than with a donation of blood, the very gift of life," Shafer concluded.

Things that matter

The church that demands commitment

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

Is irregular attendance at church on Sunday as big a sin as adultery or murder?

Yes, in the opinion of Rev. William Richardt, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Holt, Mich., a suburb of Lansing.

Richardt's is the fastest-growing congregation in the 2.6-million-member Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod despite the fact that it not only kicks out members who don't come to church regularly, but consigns them to hell unless they repent and mend their ways.

"The third commandment ('Thou shalt sanctify the holy day') is no less important than the fifth ('Thou shalt not kill') or the sixth ('Thou shalt not commit adultery') — or any of the other commandments," says the 41-year-old pastor whose iron-handed treatment of delinquent church members recently has drawn national attention.

Breaking any of the commandments — unless followed by repentance — will land the sinner in hell, Richardt insists.

He backs that up with scripture: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die," said Ezekiel in the Old Testament.

Jesus amended that by saying, "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish."

Yes, but does that refer to people who don't attend church regularly?

Well, the writer to the Hebrews in the New Testament, after admonishing those who weren't coming to church, says that those who "willfully persist in sin" can look forward to "a fierce fire which will consume God's enemies."

Richardt's church excommunicates an average of 20 members a year — about half of them for non-attendance. Other reasons include adultery, drunkenness and living together out of wedlock when these sins go unrepented.

The 1,600-member church — up from 100 since Richardt came to the congregation 10 years ago — takes attendance every Sunday.

"We don't put a specific number on how many Sundays a person can miss before being self-excommunicated," says Richardt. "But we expect that if a person is in town and isn't doing something that has a higher priority, he will be in church."

If someone is absent from worship two or three Sundays in a row, he can figure on being contacted by the church. If the absences go on five or six weeks running, someone will call on him to explain the seriousness of his sin.

If that doesn't work, the delinquent is in danger of excommunication.

One couple and their teen-age son were recently excommunicated because they had attended services only four times in 41 weeks.

Letters of excommunication carry the dire warning, "This means you are declaring yourself a non-Christian and that if you were to die, you would not be in heaven but would be spending eternity in hell."

Of the 60 who have been excommunicated for non-attendance, 25 have "repented" and have been granted re-instatement after indicating their willingness to participate in regular worship in the future.

"We are quick to recognize adultery or drunkenness as a sin," says Richardt. "But it is different with people who are not regular in church attendance. We figure people can be nice and respectable and still not go to church. Non-attendance at church probably is the most neglected sin."

St. Matthew's is Richardt's first church. He came there in 1969 after being a parochial school teacher.

"Richardt has done one tremendous job of building up his church," says one of the Michigan pastor's Missouri Synod colleagues. "While we have never told people we have dropped from our rolls that they are going to hell, I agree with Richardt that if you put teeth in disciplining church members, it works."

"People respect a church that demands commitment. It means you have high standards and most people want that from their church."

'Ye must be recycled'

By THE REV.
M. GREGORY GENTRY
Pastor
Canton Calvary Assembly of God

In recent years, due to the energy crisis and the realization of the fact that we are rapidly depleting our planet's natural resources, there's been an increased interest in recycling. Waste papers, glass bottles, scrap metal, everything from motor oil to cardboard boxes is being examined for it's recycling possibilities.

The original cycle itself begins when the manufacturer produces a well crafted, quality piece of merchandise and presents it to the consumer for his or her edification. In the course of time and under normal circumstances and use, the product naturally becomes worn, frayed, marred and many times broken and irreparable.

This is where the recycling process comes in.

Someone with a keen eye for potential spots what we consider to be scrap and offers to take this "junk" off of our hands. Of course, we're glad to be rid of it, often times unaware of the value in an item, if we had simply made a minor effort at recycling it ourselves. Occasionally, we are aware of potential value in merchandise, but we just don't have the time, we don't want to be bothered, or possibly we lack the skill to go through the recycling process ourselves. I'm sure that's part of the reasoning behind all of the garage and yard sales going on across our land today.

Recycling really is a good idea. It shows our consideration and care for future generations. But, you know, recycling is certainly not new by any means, for God has been at this business for a multitude of generations. That's right. From the very beginning He's been taking the lives of men and women who originally were created lovely, lives that now have become marred, broken, sometimes even irreparable, and making them into new creations by His power.

The Bible says in II Corinthians 5:17 that "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature," literally, a new creation. It goes on to say, "...old things are passed away, behold, all things become new." Simply by coming to God the heavenly Father and confessing that Jesus Christ is Lord and believing that God raised Jesus from the dead (along with our own genuine repentance of sin) is enough to have our old sin-scarred lives, totally recycled (the Bible often calls it re-generation). The apostle Paul said in Ephesians 2:1 "And you hath He quickened (that is, "made alive") who were dead in trespasses and sin." Obviously, we've all offended God at some time by sin and have all stood in need of the recycling work of his Holy Spirit. Jesus Himself expressed the importance of it when He said in John 3:3 that "except a man be born-again (spiritually recycled) he cannot see the kingdom of God."

Won't YOU take your precious life to the Master Recycler today and let Him make it over in the image of His own dear Son? He's prepared to recycle your outlook on life, your desires, ambitions, likes, dislikes, your strengths and weaknesses. He'll make all things work together for good to those who reach out to love Him who first loved us (Romans 8:28).

The work of the Holy Spirit in the human heart changes habits, appetites and attitudes, and I'm not speaking strictly from a theological standpoint, but from first hand experience, for that wonderful recycling miracle took place in me some years ago and I've never been the same. The reality of it in me was so real that my wife soon received Christ as Lord though she had been a "church-goer" for many years. You can't fool those you live with!

Yes, God's been in the recycling business for a long time and He'll not stop with the recycling of the hearts of men and women either. In the future He will recycle our world and the heavens that surround us. In II Peter 3:10-13 the apostle there tells us that the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in which the heavens will pass away with a great noise and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also and the works that are therein shall be burned up. Nevertheless we, according to His promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

For those that responded to His great love we look forward with real anticipation to the day when H fulfills His word to the apostle John as recorded in Revelation 21:4-5. There it reads "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away (recycled). And he that sat upon the throne said, Behold, I make all things new. And he said unto me, Write: for these words are true and faithful." My friend, these words ARE true and faithful and as Jesus Himself said, "Ye must be recycled (born-again)."

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 19
Read Luke 2:15-20

"Meanwhile the shepherds returned glorifying and praising God for what they had heard and seen." (Luke 2:20 NEB)

Children enjoy playing with those little jars of soapy solution that include a plastic handle. Dipping the ring into the solution, they wave it in the air to form a river of bubbles that quickly drift away. The bubbles are fragile. They have to be enjoyed in their limited, temporary life. Trying to hold on to Christmas is as difficult as trying to freeze a bubble.

That was true of the first Christmas. The shepherds and the wise men came and left. Mary and Joseph packed up their few belongings and headed south. Christmas did not freeze itself into marble or granite, but was one day on the moving spectrum of life. It is up to us to receive from each Christmas its proper blessings—to cause us to be more loving in our relationships, more generous in our understanding, more willing to serve God by helping those in need.

We cannot freeze Christmas and hold on to it forever, but we can let it touch us thoroughly and completely in its passing.

PRAYER: No one stayed long at the manger, Lord. Even as a child You were soon on the move. Bless us on our pilgrim way. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: God magnifies the value of certain experiences by making them especially brief.

Child support:

Another shortcoming of jailing in these cases, according to Chambers, is that certain groups of non-payers—especially fathers of children who receive welfare payments—are likely to be "singled out inappropriately for especially disfavored treatment."

"Within Michigan, there are counties in which it appears that most of the jailing befalls those whose children receive welfare benefits, despite the fact that no just claim can be made that this group is either more villainous for failing to pay or that it constitutes an especially visible group to use to scare other potential defaulters," according to Chambers.

For many fathers, non-payment of child support can be the product of psychological conflicts in the post-divorce period, Chambers pointed out.

"In many cases, the non-paying male who appears to have a callous disregard for the welfare of his family is in fact caught in a much more nearly forgivable struggle, often the continuation after divorce of patterns of behavior that were part of the marital relationship — with-holding as a form of communication.

"Divorced men thus often 'forget' to pay from quite prosaic human feelings of jealousy or anger, just as divorced women forget that Tuesday is the day the father planned to visit the children. At one hearing, a Genesee man confessed to the judge with some embarrassment that he had withheld support, in an effort he admitted was childish, to make the woman realize her dependence on him and come back. Jailings commonly occur during this period of stress."

In the 28 Michigan counties studied, Chambers found that child support collection rates varied widely from a low of 45 and 46 percent in two counties, to a high of 85 and 86 percent in the two highest-paying counties.

Chambers found that a "self-starting" system of collection, whereby the Friend of the Court closely monitored payments and issued warnings for missed payments, was a major factor in a county's receiving high rates of payment.

The study also found a strong positive correlation between collections and the rate of jailing, provided that jailing was coupled with a self-starting enforcement system.

"A county has to have both a self-starting enforcement system and a substantial rate of jailing in order to add appreciably to collections. Counties with a high jail rate, but not a self-starting system of warning collected little, if any, more than counties that jailed no one."

The study found that collections were lowest in highly populated counties, and in areas with high unemployment.

School districts get allotment of handicapped education funds

Nine Western Wayne County School districts will be on the receiving end of a portion of nearly $6 million in federal funds for the education of the handicapped.

Distribution of the funds to 36 school districts in the Wayne County Intermediate School District recently was approved by the WCISD Board of Education.

The money, provided under the Education for All Handicapped Act (Public Law 94-142), is allocated through the state and the intermediate district under a formula based on the number of physically, mentally and emotionally handicapped children in each school district.

The districts receive the money to strengthen or expand services to handicapped children up to the age of 26. In addition, each of the district receives funds to assist in providing services for handicapped preschoolers.

The allotments will be:
— Cherry Hill School District, a basic grant of $549,687 and a preschool grant of $3,690;
— Crestwood School District, a $48,878 basic grant and $4,592 preschool grant;

— Huron School District, a basic grant of $33,819 and preschool grant of $1,968;

— Inkster School District, $40,920 and $4,018 in basic and preschool grants respectively;

— Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, a basic grant of $176,332 and preschool grant of $5,494;

— Romulus Community Schools, $75,915 basic grant and $4,756 preschool grant;

— Van Buren Public School District, $7,549 basic grant and $7,462 preschool grant;
— Van Buren Public School District, $7,549 basic grant and $7,462 preschool grant;

— Wayne-Westland Community Schools, $185,569 basic grant and $4,836 preschool grant; and — Westwood School District, a basic grant of $63,333 and preschool grant of $4,838.

PIC seeks on-the-job training for Wayne County unemployed

A $2 million federal grant appropriation and the completion of a 9-point program by the 25-member Private Industry Council (PIC) has cleared the way for an aggressive campaign by that agency to seek commercial on-the-job training for Wayne County unemployed. PIC President Robert Jenks told the Wayne County Board of Commissioners' Human Resources Committee last week.

PIC is the local advisory body for a new Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program to develop jobs within the private industrial and business sectors. Until now CETA trainees have been almost solely involved in government-oriented employment.

Established by Congress as part of the 1978 re-enactment of CETA, the program is funded $75 million nationally.

According to Commissioner Martha G. Scott, chairperson of the Human Resources Committee and PIC vice-president, the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL) has reserved $2 million for 1979-80 activities in the Wayne County CETA service area, which includes all Wayne County communities except Detroit. Both Livonia and Dearborn recently elected to join the County PIC project and consolidate their federal funds. These cities previously conducted their own CETA programs.

"PIC's goal," according to Jenks, "is to provide for the hiring of CETA participants as direct employees of a private firm during their training, have the training conducted within the employer's own facilities by company employees, and promote permanent employment for the trainee either at the facility or at another cooperating company."

Federal guidelines require members of PIC be selected from large- and small businesses, labor, education and community-based organizations.

PIC's 9-point program now completed, sought federal funding for the 1979-80 fiscal year, election of officers, execution of a multi-jurisdictional agreement among the 3-prime sponsors (Wayne County, Livonia and Dearborn) to provide for PIC's first training opportunities, establishment of a separate non-profit corporation to administer Title VII programs and facilities, drafting passages of Articles of Incorporation and bylaws for PIC, adoption of an organizational staffing and appointment of an Acting Director, execution of a satisfactory letter of agreement between the prime sponsors and PIC in order to secure necessary funding, and development of philosophies and policies for the selection and implementation of Title VII facilities.

PIC officers include Robert Jenks, president; Commissioner Martha Scott, vice-president; Ray Dixon, treasurer; Ray Lech, secretary; and executive committee members John Dutton and Freda Rutherford.

Jenks is an executive director of the Work-Education Council of Southeast Michigan of the Coalition of Business, Industry and Education; Ms. Scott is chairperson of the Wayne County Human Resources Committee representing one of the prime sponsors—Wayne County; Dixon is with the Unistrut Corporation of Wayne; Lech represents the Livonia Chamber of Commerce, Dutton, Dearborn; and Ms. Rutherford, the Downriver Community Conference of 14 communities. Edward R. Koch, deputy director of the Office of Manpower, has been named acting executive director.

Training already has started for several PIC-CETAs under the auspices of the Automobile Dealers Association of Michigan which has guaranteed PIC that these trainees will meet state certification requirements in at least two of eight areas of automobile mechanics.

Jenks said the program is beginning to move forward rapidly and hopes to meet with the prime sponsors on a regular basis to keep them apprised of the organization's program.

Jobless rate rises

Michigan's unemployment rate in November rose to 7.9 percent from 7.2 percent in October, according to Michigan Employment Security Commission Director S. Martin Taylor.

The number of unemployed climbed by 30,000 to 345,000, with employment falling by 4,000 to 4,024,000. There also was a 26,000 increase in the labor force as job seekers sought employment during the Christmas season.

The holiday hiring offset numerous short-term and indefinite layoffs in the auto and related industries. The auto industry has announced or implemented additional layoffs since the mid-November reference period in an attempt to keep inventories in line with reduced sales.

A year ago November there were 280,000 unemployed, or 6.6 percent of the labor force.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

The piano, like many musical instruments, has been affected by technology and electronics. Electric pianos today are a component in many rock bands. They do not look like traditional pianos aside from the fact that they have keys. They are much smaller, with fewer keys and an electrical cord. Instead of creating sound through the reverberation of plucked strings in the body of the piano, they depend on electrical impulses in response to the pressing of keys. The result is a sound also unlike the traditional piano.

Put music into your life with a new piano or organ from DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne, Romulus, 48184. We will be happy to demonstrate the various models we have available in many price ranges. Editorial opinions

Iran

Most Americans are unaware of the recent history of Iranian-American relations from World War II's end in 1945 to the present. And looming large in the Iranian psyche are events of the early fifties.

In 1953, another passionate Iranian nationalist, and religious fanatic, Mohammad Mossadegh, was the victim of a coup organized in large part by the Central Intelligence Agency. Mossadegh had nationalized the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and brought down on Iran's head a boycott by the western powers. (Oil was not in short supply at that time.)

Kermit Roosevelt, according to the current book of revelations about the CIA by Thomas Powers (The Man Who Kept The Secrets—Knopf) was the West's hero in that overthrow, having used liberal amounts of money and other means to stir opposition to Mossadegh at home. That should be kept in mind when the current ruling fanatic, Ayatollah Khomeini, talks about U.S. spies in the American Embassy in Tehran. There are, of course, intelligence agents there—as in every modern embassy all over the world. While we in America thought the 1953 overthrow of Mossadegh was a victory—and Roosevelt was awarded the National Security Medal—memories of that event are bitter among Iranians.

None of this, of course, justifies the seizure of the U.S. Embassy or the holding of hostages, but it helps explain the emotional frenzy and frustration of Iranians, who believe, rightly or wrongly, that the U.S. is again plotting the overthrow of their leader.

The tactics of 1953, however, are not now employed by the CIA, and President Carter is one who has been critical of certain earlier CIA practices. Nor is there any logic in Iran's attempt to blackmail the U.S. with hostages, when it took no such action against Mexico, when the deposed Shah was in residence there, unless one considers the belief of some Iranians that the student seizure has shut down the most powerful western intelligence operation in their country.

HEW loafs

A reporter in Kansas City recently spent three months working for the Department of Health Education and Welfare to learn what it's really like in the federal bureaucracy. Ester Bauer was employed in the four-state regional office. While there she was observing how employees worked—and loafed.

She then left the agency and resumed her work as a reporter—and wrote a series of three articles describing her experience. They are eye-opening. A typical day, she recalls, in the office (6,000 employees) was one in which she addressed one envelope, photocopied a report, mailed some letters, typed a travel voucher and spent a few minutes typing a job description. About half of each day was spent reading newspapers or books. Others did the same.

During her three months in the job, she was often asked to type letters for her bosses which were personal in nature, or to help members of their families line up a job, etc.

In other words, here is the latest proof that HEW is bloated beyond description, wasting money and out of control. It is the largest-spending federal agency, each year being voted, by one liberal-spending Congress after another, almost $200 billions of dollars.

A ten percent cut in the HEW budget, amounting to some $20 billions, would almost balance the federal budget. Yet Congress has rejected proposals to effect even this minor economy.

More state accountability studied

By WILLIAM KEITH
State Representative
33rd District

The House has under consideration a bill which would require a much closer look at the effectiveness of state agencies.

The purpose is to make the agencies more accountable for their activities and expenditures. Hopefully, this will enable us to thin state bureaucracy by weeding out agencies that are ineffective or unneeded.

Basically, as reported out of committee, the measure is a program evaluation bill. It would require legislative review and evaluation of every state agency within a given period of time. It will give the Legislature a comprehensive plan for eventually examining the entire system, responding to complaints of many taxpayers that state government is growing out of control.

There had been under consideration a "sunset" proposal under which any newly-created agency would terminate after a certain length of time, unless it was renewed by action of the Legislature. Other states have tried this approach, but with limited success.

The program evaluation legislation was developed by a special committee of the House, after some three years of study. The committee decided against the automatic termination dates because it did not feel that plan would be effective, and also that it could not be implemented in Michigan for several reasons.

First, many governmental agencies and programs were created or required by the State Constitution and, therefore, cannot be terminated by the Legislature.

Second, placing termination dates on agencies that have the power to issue bonds would jeopardize the ability of those agencies and programs depend, to a large extent, on federal dollars.

The federal government would not be likely to fund them if their future existence was in doubt. Therefore, in some cases, placing termination dates on such agencies and programs would cause their effectiveness to be destroyed well before the Legislature had a chance to review them.

The bill proposes that the program evaluation process be supervised by a joint House-Senate committee. The reviews of individual programs and agencies would be conducted by special committees made up of related legislative standing committees and appropriations subcommittees. These committees would study each agency and program based on guidelines established by the joint House-Senate oversight committee.

The committee would obtain information about the organization and structure from the head of each state department, publish the information and make it available to the public.

The oversight committee would also be responsible for coordinating the evaluation process of state agencies and state tax provisions. It would decide which order agencies are to be evaluated. Each agency would have to be evaluated within 10 years after the legislation takes effect. The committee could either recommend changes in an agency or recommend that it be terminated.

The proposal would give the Legislature a comprehensive program for eventually examining the entire state government process, and give taxpayers more assurance that their tax dollars are being used efficiently, that waste and duplication is being cut and that state agencies and programs are doing the jobs they were created to do. The proposed evaluation system will solve all problems. However, it could be a major step toward improving state government.

'Teezer' sends a message

By DENNIS FASSETT
ANP Managing Editor

The jolly old elf sitting in the front row thought it was boffo.

For the hundreds of young rock fans, it provided a much longer for, but brief, interlude with their favorite rock stars.

The scene: Studio Lounge in Westland where owner Sam Halim had turned the night spot into an afternoon matinee, sans hard drink, for the purpose of raising money for the Plymouth State Home.

And this column is about some of the winners in this world who care enough about others to act when others only talk.

Staccato reverberations created by Teezer drummer Keith Johnstone set the scene for the opening number by the local group who had donated its time for this fundraiser.

Coming in upbeat was Abe White on base guitar followed closely by lead guitarist Rick Young with singer Kelly Green.

And the room began to move.

First slowly, then with an increasing tempo, the crowd and Teezer both rose to the occasion, and the afternoon was underway. The birth of yet another group of winners was history.

Teezer, fathered by a previously owned automobile and mothered by many, is a group that first drew breath in the rear of Bruce Young's Canton Township used car lot.

Young, a graduate mechanical engineer, restaurateur, musicologist, and used car entrepreneur, once decided to grant the wish of a son who wanted desperately to own an electric guitar.

The granting of that wish drastically changed the lives of the Young family, and hundreds of others.

Rick Young was very good. And that first guitar, while giving way to several others, attracted to it many aspiring young musicians — 'TEEZER' was born.

And on this cold and snowy Sunday afternoon, Rick's guitar was fairly screaming to the enthralled young audience ranging in age from 1 to 75.

That Teezer played for the youngsters, free of charge, is not the story, though. Nor is the fact that the fundraiser was sponsored by several local organizations, including these newspapers. And neither is the fact that several important people donated much of their time to the event, the story.

The real story is that we still have people willing to help others, and the name on the marquee should have read: 'WINNERS'.

Bruce Young, father of Rick, and Teezer's manager, is a winner because he has helped to create this clean rock group that is willing to give to others.

Elsie Young, Bruce's wife and right hand, is a winner for having put up for so many years, with both Bruce and the antics of the rock stars, who often made their home with the Youngs.

And Santa Reaves is a winner because he was willing to set aside the sorrow over the loss of his wife, and once again don his red suit and capture the hearts of the many youngsters on the scene.

From the efforts of all these people, the Plymouth State Home received nearly $800. Teezer's Rick Young and Kelly Green lost their voices, and Bruce and Elsie Young gained a smile.

And smile they should.

Many have lost an audience while lecturing our youth on society, but Young produced a vehicle for transcending the gap between young and old, and brought the message to a new generation.

A message simply stating that it is also 'cool' to help.

Reflections

My father and old Rex

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

It was almost impossible to see that morning had come when I jumped out of bed and ran to the window. The snow was being blasted against the icy panes and there was a howling around the corners of the house that sent fear tracking up my spine.

I ran down stairs and stood on the register, letting the warm air blow my nightgown up around my knees. The warmth of the room, with the light shining through the swinging door of the kitchen, and the smell of breakfast cooking, took away the fear, but the apprehension remained. I was six years old, and today was the day of the Christmas play in which I had the lead — I was Mary. We lived four miles from town and I knew that if the snow kept up the way it was there would be no way to get into the tiny church where the play was to be held.

I watched my nightgown float above the register and listened to mother's voice as she told my father that she didn't know how to break it to me that I wouldn't be able to be in the play that night.

"There will be no way to get her into town," my mother was saying as she set the pitcher of milk on the table.

"It might let up," my father answered, pouring the milk into his coffee.

I ran to the window and pressed my face against its cold surface. The snow was hitting the glass with a fury and my breath spread a veil between it and me.

All day I ran from window to window.

"It's not snowing as hard," I would shout, and father would come and stand beside me and look out. "I think you're right," he would say, and pat my shoulder.

I thought maybe it was about time for me to get upstairs and do a little praying, since prayer almost always worked at our house.

The bedroom wasn't as warm as the living room downstairs, so I pulled a quilt from the bed and wrapped it around me because I figured it might be a long time before I could get through to God, what with all the other prayers that must be going up that stormy day.

My father found me pressed against my bed, sound asleep. When he touched me I awakened and looked up in his face.

"God's going to make it so I can go," I told him, and once again he said quietly, "I think you're right."

It was almost time to leave the house and the storm had let up a little. Soft flakes were falling now, but the lane was piled high with snow drifts and even I knew there could be no way of getting the car through that snow.

My father turned from the window where he had been standing and said, "You know Sib (his name for my mother) I think I'll get old Rex out and saddle him. He could get us through the snow, and if you bundle the girl up warmly, old Rex and I ought to be able to get her to the play."

My mother flatly said no. My heart which had jumped with joy and hope at my father's words, sunk in despair. Tears sprang to my eyes and I sniffled.

My father stood a bit longer staring at nothing, and then he went over to mother and put his arms around her. "We can make it," he said. "Get her dressed warm."

Wool socks were put in the oven to warm, big ones for my father, and little ones for me. Two pair of long underwear were pulled over my body, and then my shimmering dress ... Mary's robes.

The coat was heavy and warm and mittens were put on my hands, my mittens and my sister's. And then my father wrapped me in a warm quilt and carried me out to old Rex, who was snorting and stomping in the snow. He put me in front of him in the saddle, and he nudged the horse to start. Mother and my little sister were at the kitchen window, faces pressed against the pane, waving and smiling, but I suspect my mother was filled with fear.

I don't remember much about that ride into town. The easy motion of the horse, the occasional snorting and harrumphing as he plowed through the high drifts, the warmth of my father's arms, lulled me into a gentle doze, and I couldn't believe we had actually gotten there when my father pulled the horse up in front of the church.

The play was beautiful. Only one shepherd hadn't made it, but no one seemed to notice. An angel kept sneezing when she was supposed to be singing and the organist got to coughing so hard in the middle of "Silent Night" she had to stop and let the minister give her a glass of water, but nothing like that mattered.

The storm had ended when we came out of the church and my father lifted me up on the back of old Rex. People were shouting "Merry Christmas" as they streamed out into the cold, and there was a lot of laughing and joy. I snuggled against my father and old Rex began the journey home.

As we crossed over the bridge of Snake River the moon suddenly burst from the clouds and for a brief moment the world lit up as a fantasyland. My father hummed softly and I burrowed down into the quilt and fell sound asleep.

For advice

Ask Carol Premo

By CAROL PREMIO, C.S.W.

Dear Carol,
Every Christmas I have the same problem. My parents and my husband's parents both expect us to spend the holidays at their homes. We have tried alternating years; visiting both homes a few hours each; spending X-mas eve at one home and Christmas day at the other. Nothing works. It is getting to the point that I wish the holidays were over.

Both parents enjoy our company and depend on us for their fun. I feel obligated and resent that very feeling. I simply do not know how to deal with this situation without hurting someone. What should I do?

No Christmas Cheer

Dear No,
I always think the straightforward approach is best in a situation such as this. Go to both sets of parents and explain the situation and your feelings to them. Let them know you love them very much and that the conflict is becoming both frustrating and painful. Ask them if they can help you solve this problem, developing a solution agreeable to all concerned. Perhaps, both sets of parents might find they would want to come to your home sometimes.

If this doesn't bring about the desired results, although I sincerely hope it does, then sit down with your mate and the two of you decide what is appropriate and loving according to your values. Then go ahead, follow through with what you feel is right and accept that you can't please everyone all of the time, and some you darn well don't ever please at all.

Dear Carol,
Maybe this doesn't sound like any big deal to you, but I am sort of upset.

I work full time but do not make much money. Inflation has hurt my budget very much. So, starting this past July, I have been making most of my Christmas gifts. They are quite nice — as I use good materials and spend a great deal of time on them.

The other day some people at work were talking about Christmas gifts. They said that they didn't like homemade gifts, they were "cheap" and "tacky," as well as the fact they could not be returned.

Are they right — are my gifts in poor taste because they were not purchased?

Homemade Gifts

Dear Homemade,
About the only thing that I can see that is cheap and tacky is the comments that were made by the people at work. When someone does something from the heart because they care and when they put time and energy into something for a loved one, that can be one of the most meaningful gifts one can receive.

Don't forget the whole concept between Christmas and gift giving. The little drummer boy's gift couldn't be returned either.

Dear Carol,
I live just a short distance from Detroit Metropolitan Airport. Besides the noise, living so close causes another problem. Friends, acquaintances and acquaintances of acquaintances feel I provide free round the clock pick up and delivery services. One and all feel it is cheaper as well as more convenient to leave their car at my house while they are away.

No one ever seems to leave between 9 AM and 11 PM on a clear, dry day, they only leave or arrive at 2 AM during rainstorms, fog or snowstorms.

I suppose this would be alright if they appreciated it. They do not seem to. They expect my cooperation, almost as if it were their right. One person even had the nerve to say that they were upset I did not park and come inside to the baggage claims to help them, and then go back and bring the car to the door.

What do you suggest I do? I like helping, but this seems to have gotten out of hand, becoming a gasoline and time consuming business (missed planes and no phone call, wrong time of arrival supplied, late planes, wrong name of airline supplied, etc.)

Convenient Location

Dear Convenient Location,
I think it is very generous of you to consent to help your friends when they are using the airport. And it is appropriate to do so when you feel comfortable doing it. If you feel you are being taken advantage of or being misused, then by all means feel free to say that you will be unable to do it.

You owe nothing to anyone by virtue of your living location. People who live on lakes, in Florida, in New York, etc., who put up relatives and friends who feel their company is always desired, have the same sort of problem.

Since not all people are considerate of other peoples' rights, you must protect yourself from their lack of consideration.

Towles-Grishaber wedding held at Methodist Church

Candlelight set the mood for the autumn wedding of Doreen Grishaber and Rickie R. Towles, both of Belleville. The Oct. 12 double ring rite was conducted by The Rev. Joy Arthur at the First United Methodist Church of Belleville. Harry and Elizabeth (Scotty) Grishaber, both of Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Towles of Pinckney are parents of the young couple who were later feted at a dinner-dance reception at Roma's of

Ann Arbor. For the occasion the altar was adorned with a multi-colored fall arrangement and two candelabras. Gwen Ashe and Kathy Rairick provided instrumental and vocal selections, respectively. Escorted to the sanctuary by her father, Doreen appeared in a white organza gown. The bishop sleeves cuffed in lace matched that which outlined the sheer ruffle defining the fitted bodice which was cut with a wide V-neckline. Her full circular train drifted into a chapel train with her silk illusion veil falling to the same length. Secured by a little lace cap, the lace-edged creation was embellished with scattered lace medallions. A full cascade bouquet of white silk orchids with touches of peach completed her bridal ensemble. As her sister's maid of honor, Tina Grishaber of Belleville wore an apricot qiana tunic type gown with a gathered high-necked bodice and slit cape sleeves. Her natural straw hat featured a wide brim encircled with brown and cream ribbon with her presentation bouquet comprised of three silk orchids in yellow and white with brown streamers for contrast. Walking down the aisle in identical yellow qiana dresses were the trio of bridesmaids: Mrs. Debra Twork of Romulus and Carol Robson and Kem Justice, both of Ypsilanti. Angela Grishaber, the bride's 4-year-old cousin and the daughter of the Richard Grishabers of Belleville, donned a little apricot qiana frock sashed in matching ribbon and accented with a flounced hemline. The natural wicker basket she held was filled with assorted blooms. Carrying out the role of ringbearer was Danny Robinson II, the 5 year-old son of the Danny Robinsons of Jackson.

The bridegroom asked his close friend, Guy Miller of Dexter, to serve as best man. Groomsmen included Danny Robinson of Jackson; Bill Sharp of Canton; Gary Sauburn of Ypsilanti, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Jerry Grishaber of Romulus, uncle of the bride. At the reception, the 250 guests were greeted by the bride's mother in a silver grey chiffon gown with a full-sleeved capelet-type overblouse. Mrs. Towles chose for her son's wedding a soft green qiana gown with a blouson bodice. Both were presented with white orchid corsages. Also honored with flowers were the bride's two grandmothers, Mrs. Emma Munro of Lake Charles, La. and Mrs. Annie Grishaber of Belleville.

Before returning to Belleville and their home at 10660 DeWitt, the newlyweds spent two weeks motoring to Las Vegas and the Black Hills of South Dakota. The new Mrs. Towles graduated from Belleville High School in 1976 and her husband from Willow Run High School in 1967. He later spent four years with the U.S. Air Force in Rapid City, S.D. and then attended Wayne State University for three years. Both young people are employed by the Ford Motor Company in Ypsilanti. The rehearsal dinner, given by the bridegroom, was held at Little Caesar's in Belleville.

Guests for the Saturday night dinner party were Ron Hunter of Dearborn Heights and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hunter and family.

Mrs. R. G. (Blanche) Atyeo of Liberty Street returned home on Saturday, Dec. 8, from Athens, Ga., after having been a guest of Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Booth for a week. While there they also spent a week at Jacksonville, Fla., with the Booth's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Coomb.

Word was received here last week of the death of The Rev. Charles Dibley of Tawas City, a former pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Belleville, on Saturday, Dec. 8, aged 66 years. Funeral services were held Tuesday, Dec. 11, at Tawas United Methodist Church with burial in Evergreen Cemetery at Hale.

Joseph Mercy Hospital on Wednesday, Dec. 12. Mrs. Dolph's mother, Mrs. Harvey Boprie of LeRoy, will spend some time with the family.

MISS YOUNG

NJHS art teachers guests at Home Arts

The November meeting of the Home Arts Club was held in the art room at North Junior High School with president Marilyn Prill presiding. Sixteen members answered roll call and were reminded that the annual Christmas party would be held for members only at the home of Sharlene Tator on High Street. Each was to bring a handmade or homemade gift for exchanging, a tradition established several years back which proved most successful.

Following adjournment Jean Ferguson introduced two guest speakers — Clair Steinman and Alan Rice, both art teachers at North. Rice explained decoupage and how it is done telling the group that first one must decide on what is to be preserved and the type of wood or plaster upon which it is to be displayed. After gluing the pictures on the surface, modpodge is used as the basic coating with about two or three applications given before a finishing coat of lacquer. He then exhibited tree decorations which had been made of layers of construction paper glued together and then lacquered.

Miss Steinman welcomed the group to her art room and then displayed some of her students' work which ranged from enlarged cartoons to poster-size works showing perspective. Colorful mosaics done by her seventh and eighth graders were also shown. Members were then instructed on how to fashion burlap flowers.

Hostesses for the evening, Mildred Baker and Agnes Elliott, brought the session to a close with pumpkin pie and whipped cream served from a table centered with a filled cornucopia.

The executive board comprised of Marilyn Prill, Frances Jobe, Rhoda Chapo, Muriel

Wolfe and Phyllis Breithaupt were to be in charge of the holiday party refreshments with the program committee, Charlotte Budd, Eula Haft, Lucille Bravatto, Lillian Ray and Jean Ferguson seeing to entertainment.

Some unstuffy ideas for the unexpected

Holidays bring out the visitor and party-giver in all of us and these parties are among the best of the year. It's a perfect time to open your house to friends and neighbors for a cup of Christmas cheer and some special holiday treats.

Hot hors d'oeuvres are always welcome. Along with cocktail franks wrapped in bacon, and hot shrimp, a platter of stuffed mushrooms is hearty and inviting. It adds a nifty touch to any open house and is so easy to put together you'll use the idea over and over throughout the year.

Fill 18 large mushroom caps with prepared Stove Top chicken flavor stuffing mix made according to package directions. The stuffing is ready in minutes and the delicate blend of herbs and seasoning provides a wonderful flavor for the mushrooms. Arrange the mushrooms in a shallow baking dish, drizzle with 3 tablespoons melted butter and place in preheated broiler for 5 minutes. Hot appetizers for a cold night!

BPW's traditional holiday party held

The Humanitarian Committee arranged the December meeting of the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club for 30 members and guests at the Faith United Methodist Church in Denton on Dec. 3. The Ambassadors from the Belleville High School provided madrigal and Christmas carols under the direction of Vicki Kneue.

Also in the sanctuary, Audrey McKee, committee member, narrated Christmas carols — their history and Biblical backgrounds including several members in word and group singing. Ruth Pollard was a guest soloist accompanied by Gwen Ashe.

BPW members brought their gifts for residents of the Evergreen Hills Convalescent Home. On Friday, Dec. 14, the Club provided an evening of Christmas joy for them. The local senior citizen group the "Kitchen Belles Band" under the direction of Mertie Wells, also was there for fun, singing and fellowship.

The Jan. 7, 1980 club meeting will be arranged by the Public Relations Committee. Dinner reservations may be made by contacting Margaret Saunders, chairman, at 699-9710.

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Having two decades pass since a wee bairn was in my charge completely DOESN'T seem "just like yesterday" — it's more like an eternity since I had full command of so valuable a cargo (that's what Matthew's little jogging suit says — "Precious Cargo").

Those 20 years since Carol was a nearly-7-month-old have seen many a change — mostly in the gal who was then a mere mother who now bears the awesome title of "Grand" mother. For one thing, there were no eye glasses to prevent my nuzzling a sweet babe's tender little face and there was a much stronger back for standing in those sway-backed positions which maintain one's balance while holding an infant.

My 1979 babysitting session, however, had to be much easier than any my own mother experienced in the '50's. Ready-bottled and nipped formula to begin with just has to be about the biggest time saver of them all! Coupled with throw-away diapers they cut a grandmother's work right down to the important business of spoiling that baby!

And I've got to admit to all my peers (those of you who are nodding and thinking "We told you so") that the role of Matthew's Grandmother is one I thoroughly enjoy playing. A few months back, though, you'd never have convinced me that I could love or care for another human being as much as our own three girls. That love and tender feeling are there, though, along with still another element which REALLY amazes me... that of infinite patience!

WOULD YOU BELIEVE that it was none other than the Coca-Cola people who came up with the image of Santa Claus as we know him today?

'Twas shortly after the depression when the country needed a definite lifter-upper — something to assuage the years of gloom and dejection — that the softdrink maker decided its own company was in want of new and cheerier advertising.

Commercial artists submitted their ideas with the eventual winner having presented his idea of a Santa Claus based on Clement C. Moore's "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

Of course, the fat, jolly man in red and white was always pictured with a bottle of Coke either in his hand, near a plate of cookies with a note from youngsters telling of the treat they left, or with the merchandise stuffed in someone's stocking.

The bewhiskered, white-haired "old elf" caught on quickly — with the previous image of a suave, tall, youngish St. Nicholas fading rapidly into oblivion.

WITH NEVER-ENDING daily chores plus the season's call to shopping, wrapping, addressing, baking, socializing, etc. — the usual task of "getting dinner" seems to run a poor fifth or sixth on the list. At our house, it seems to be a chronic case of "Good grief, what'll I fix tonight!"

One way to solve that daily problem other than eating out is to pull out the old soup kettle and make up a BIG batch of your favorite — enough to freeze in serving size containers for those days you'll be running late. We all have our favorites but, unfortunately, they call for extra time, too. But now's the time to cheat just a bit and go the easy-do-it route.

Here's one you can put together simply by stocking up on a few canned items.

QUICK CLAM CHOWDER

- 1 can (10½ ozs.) condensed tomato soup
- 1 can (10½ ozs.) condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 2 soup cans milk
- 1 can (7½ ozs.) minced clams, undrained
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons finely diced salt pork or bacon, cooked crisp
- croutons or crackers

Mix all ingredients, except last two, and heat well. Sprinkle with salt pork or bacon and serve with croutons. Makes about 6 cups.

ONLY IN AMERICA would they spend a fortune for a TV commercial which singingly begs you to "look for the union label" when you shop the clothing stores... and then use labels which are "Made in Japan." (A tidbit collected from "Hollywood Squares.")

LEE MURRAY (you hear her on WJR about thrice weekly) sends us a few more seasonal suggestions which just might come in handy for those seeking that "something different" for gift giving. And — since she is a spokesman for the American Dairy Association — don't be surprised that everything ties in with her sponsors.

Gifts from the heart and from your own kitchen are warm and thoughtful. A variety of specially chosen cheeses with crackers, all tied up in a huge cotton scarf, makes a handsome present for the hostess.

What do give children, especially when there are a lot of them on your list? Make some fudge, dark with chocolate and rich with butter. An inexpensive toy dump truck will hold the goodies for a delighted little boy, a doll-sized basket for little girls.

A pretty serving bowl filled with butter good Christmas cookies is a simple but thoughtful gift.

It's eggnog time and no refrigerator can ever hold enough for the unexpected guests, the planned parties and family enjoyment. Serve eggnog at meals and for snacks — it's wholesome and very special for the holidays. (EDITOR'S NOTE: And also is a nice hostess gift to take along to that "coffee.")

Hospitality and holidays go hand in hand so count on dairy foods to make them happy and easy. Sour cream stirs into a dip with the addition of a favorite dry soup or salad dressing mix. Or grate fresh cucumber into the sour cream for dipping raw vegetable.

THE BOTTOM LINE: There's only one thing worse than the man who will argue over anything, and that's the man who will argue over nothing.

It's a date

Lions Club to form form chapter for hearing, speech impaired

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Inkster Lions Club is in the process of forming and sponsoring a new Lions Club that will consist of hearing and speech impaired men 18 years and older living in the Western Wayne County area.

Especially involved will be participants from the Associated Newspapers' circulation area — Wayne, Westland, Canton, Romulus, Belleville and Huron, Van Buren and Sumpter townships, in addition to Inkster.

Lions International has been involved in working with the blind for some 60 years and during the past seven years has added to their services by working with and aiding the hearing and speech impaired. This aspect of Lions International went into high gear about 1975 with annual symposiums, the most recent being held in October at Michigan School for the Deaf in Flint.

In addition, Lions International has set up ear bone banks and collected used hearing aids to restore and distribute.

The idea to start this new Lions Club, which will consist of deaf members, came out of the association that J.D. Sharp of the Inkster Lions Club has with children at the Lutheran School for the Deaf in Detroit.

Sharp, who has been a physical education volunteer instructor at the school the past 18 months, wants to start the new Lions Club which will consist of deaf members. During his time working at the school, Sharp has become very involved with the deaf and now in his chairman's position with the Hearing and Speech Committee of Lions International feels the idea of a deaf Lions Club would be a great added service.

"This new club would not only work with the blind, but would be an asset to the Lionism work with the deaf," he said. Sharp, who is 26 years old and can hear, lives in Dearborn Heights and is a member of the Inkster Lions Club.

"Some deaf people might feel a little skeptical and wonder why I, a hearing person, would be interested in starting a Lions Club comprised of deaf members," he said. "I have great respect for the deaf and one of the reasons I want to start a deaf Lions Club is because I have been District State Chairman of the Hearing and Speech Committee for four months and have acquired a strong feeling for deaf people.

"Some people just do not understand deafness unless they've had an opportunity to work with deafness," Sharp said. He has a great fondness for all people and has coached hockey and baseball for the past six years. He currently coaches a hockey team of 17-19 year-olds that plays in Dearborn and surrounding areas.

Sharp stressed that this would not be a "deaf Lions Club." This will be a Lions Club whose members are deaf. Lions International in its 63 years of service work with the blind has brought great understanding between the blind and the sighted. Likewise, Lions International hopes to achieve the same goal by bridging the gap between people with normal hearing and those who do not hear, with clubs of this kind. This is another reason why Sharp is interested in forming the club.

Sharp said deaf persons in this community who are interested in helping to form this Lions Club, and possibly others, can contact him by writing J.D. Sharp, Inkster Lions Club, P.O. Box 1122, Inkster 48141, or call him at 274-3747.

a program as formal as the President's Physical Fitness Program.

He "signs" (interprets) for many programs at the school and finds great fulfillment in his work.

Those interested should contact Sharp immediately so he can make arrangements to find a meeting place that is centrally located for all those planning to participate.

'I love you'

Inkster Lions Club is in the process of forming and sponsoring a new Lions Club of deaf members in Associated Newspapers' circulation area of Wayne, Westland, Canton, Romulus, Belleville, Huron Township and Van Buren Township, in addition to Inkster. J.D. Sharp, who is organizing the new Lions Club, is shown "signing" the words, "I love you." All interested deaf men, 18 and over, are urged to contact Sharp as soon as possible by calling 274-3747. — ANP photo.

Divitto memo riles seniors; Salvages his directorship

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

The emotions of a lot of out-Wayne County seniors were stirred when the county's Office of Aging Director Dante Divitto rushed a message to them that there was an imminent threat the county's senior citizen programs would be curtailed.

"But it just wasn't true. It was irresponsible for him to do that," said Western Wayne County Commissioner William Joyner. "The only thing written out of the budget was Divitto's job."

County commissioners in their initial budget drafts had called for the elimination of Divitto's position as director of senior services, and had created a lesser paying position, under the direction of James Curtin, who heads up the Operation of Program Development and Coordination. The intent was to streamline Office Aging programs and others, not eliminate. And it was a move to attempt to lower the costs of programs for the new decade, said Joyner.

"What really would have happened is the programs would have been run better, with less money. We were trying to eliminate some dead weight," Joyner said.

In a 4-month investigation into the county-operated senior services department earlier this year,

Associated Newspapers learned that Divitto held a full-time position as an instructor at Macomb County Community College, while concurrently working for the county. Divitto came under heavy attack by county commissioners for holding the dual jobs and also for residing outside of the county. He lives in Oakland County.

"None of the programs were in jeopardy, only his job," Joyner said. "What bothers me the most is that he stirred up the emotions of hundreds of senior citizens giving them false information just to save his job." County officials, however, had discussed terminating the Office of Aging's monthly seniors publication, "The Advocate."

It turns out that Divitto's position was salvaged after all, by an 11th hour revision of the county's budget which called for the re-instatement of Divitto and his position.

Only moments before the budget was to have been approved did the issue re-open, and county officials voted to restore Divitto's position.

"It became an emotional play on words," Joyner said, "and Divitto won."

In agreement, Inkster's county commissioner, Kay Beard, said essential senior services were "never" in jeopardy, that Divitto's actions were in extreme poor judgement, and that "it was the last straw with me and a lot of other commissioners."

"He used the seniors and it was the last straw as far as I'm concerned. He doesn't know how to deal with people and unfortunately, that is a people service he's in," Mrs. Beard said.

If Divitto is to be reprimanded for his actions, Mrs. Beard and Joyner both aren't sure who'll be delivering such a reprimand.

"We've done it before, and I'm not sure what good it will do or who'll be doing it this time. I just don't know what will happen next," said an exasperated Mrs. Beard.

In the initial decision to drop the top job a few months back, the Board of Commissioners' official minutes reflect a majority of the

What a party!

A reunion where the oldest alumnus was approximately five years of age attracted hundreds of graduates and their families recently at Wayne County General Hospital.

It was a gathering for all the "graduates" from the Newborn Intensive Care Unit at the hospital. These graduates had all stayed at the unit for a period of time — two weeks to several months — due to prematurity, or respiratory or cardiac problems needing the required intensive medical nursing care.

The Christmas party-reunion was held Dec. 5 and hosted by Diane Mikiciuk, RN, head nurse of the Newborn Intensive Care Unit, plus her staff of neo-natal nurses.

Close to 500 people attended, mothers and babies whose experience with the unit dated back five years.

The party featured a magic show, punch and cookies, and, of course, a visit from Santa Claus as a highlight of the afternoon.

Several area merchants donated food and other goods for the party, including Standard Candy Cane Company of Detroit, Burger Chef on Inkster and Cherry Hill, K-Marts in the Wayne area, Ross Laboratories, Mead Johnson Lab, Argyle Lab, AAA Office on Wayne Road, Arby's in Wayne, Westland Hudson's and Kiwanis of Livonia.

The party was a "rousing success" according to spokespersons at the hospital.

County officials noted that the success of the Newborn Intensive Care Unit is a reflection of the high level care provided to the community by the hospital.

How about a kiss?

Lubie Wiggins (second from right) wanted to be sure he was the first to get a kiss from his twin sons Jason (second from left) and Jay (right), both 2, so he had his wife hold a ball of mistletoe. The family was among more than 450 persons who turned out last Wednesday for a very special birthday party for the newborn intensive care unit at Wayne County General Hospital. "Graduates" of the unit during its five years of operation were reunited with the unit's staff members at the party that featured none other than Santa Claus. — ANP photo by Tom Greenwood.

Joyner: Pies vs. pounds

Wayne County Commission R. William Joyner (D-27th Dist.) is too chubby — by his own admission.

And he's going to take off some of his ample poundage and help the cause of the Canton Jaycees at the same time. Joyner this week accepted the Jaycees challenge to lose 30 pounds between now and the end of February.

Canton Jaycees have a way of giving Joyner real incentive to lose the excess "baggage." They have asked Supervisor Noel Culbert to throw a pie in the face of Joyner if the Commissioner fails to lose the 30 pounds.

Joyner is public relations counsel for the Michigan Jaycees. In the volunteer capacity, Joyner has asked Jaycee chapters to work hard in their communities during the month of January to let others know that January is the 60th anniversary of the founding of the United States Jaycees.

If chapters such as Canton meet certain requirements and Joyner does not lose 30 pounds, he gets a pie in the face — ala Soupy Sales.

I'm having fun

It took a little support from Mom, but 1-year-old Jimmy Tobin was all smiles for ANP Staff Photographer Tom Greenwood just to prove he was having fun at a very special birthday party for the newborn intensive care unit of Wayne County General Hospital. Jimmy and his mother, Diane Tobin, were among more than 450 people who turned out for the party, marking the fifth year of operation for the unit. The party reunited the unit's "graduate" with its Staffers for the first time since their stay in the hospital.

In the final vote, however, the majority of the commissioners present were representing the Detroit area.

It became an emotional play on words...

"It was a power play. He got his position back because the Detroit commissioners were there to vote. Had they (Detroit commissioners) been around for the first vote, the outcome would not have been the same, and there would have been no question about his job security," Joyner said.

Divitto issued a memo to all his nutrition coordinators in November, alerting them to the "very real possibility" of the Wayne County Office of Aging facing severe cut-backs.

In his memo he stated: "We are facing the very real possibility of being eliminated from next year's county budget, beginning Dec. 1, and the efforts by staff to gain the county commissioners support to re-instate the office have been fruitless. We are asking your immediate efforts in mobilizing senior citizens support for the office through your nutrition food sites. This is the final option that we have delayed using until now."

"Because of the urgency of time,"

Divitto's memo read, "phone calls by senior citizens participants to their county commissioner are the first priority."

His memo, apparently effective, spurred seniors to call their commissioners. Mrs. Beard reporting to ANP that she received more than 50 phone calls from senior complainants the very day of the vote on the Divitto issue.

Joyner said he received phone calls doubling that figure.

Commissioners said they took exception to the memo primarily because of its "scare tactic" nature, and because the information was erroneous.

"It was more than disturbing. It was disgusting," Joyner said, "for a man in his position to play on the emotions of seniors."

Parties can be deducts

Businesses may want to express their good will this holiday season by throwing a party for clients, customers or employees. However, say the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, for it to be a tax-deductible business expense a few guidelines must be followed. This includes that the boss must be present and personal friends should not be invited.

Holding the annual holiday party in your home this year may be just as deductible as if you took clients or employees to a restaurant. Spouses of clients or employees may be invited because the cost of entertaining such spouses, including your own, also is deductible. If some of the guests are not business contacts, the expenses can be prorated accordingly.

One of the most important things to remember about business entertainment expenses is keeping records. The CPAs say this should be made at the time of the entertainment. To claim this tax deduction, it is a must to provide a list of guests, their business relationship to the company, the purpose of the party and the date and location. In addition, the receipts for the costs must be kept.

Is There Help For Parents Whose Child Is Terminally Ill?

The imminent death of a child due to a terminal illness is an agonizing situation for parents. It was out of a similar life-experience that an organization called "Carelighters" was founded.

Lore & Paul Prager founded Carelighters after their youngest son, Kevin, suffered for two years with terminal cancer. The purpose of the organization is to help other parents who have heard the sentence of death pronounced for a child.

Carelighters currently operates out of Ingalls Memorial Hospital in Harvey, Illinois. The parents operate a 24-hour hotline (312-798-1020) for parents to call for any kind of help. They also meet monthly to share feelings and offer each other support.

If you have any such concerns, we invite your inquiry in person or by phone.

Carl Gligoroff

...The famous opera star from Wayne

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer
"Carl Gligoroff — the famous opera singer from Wayne, Michigan."

That's not the introduction just yet, but it could be in a few short years for a rising young opera hopeful, if things continue to go well with him.

The 39-year-old Gligoroff, who graduated from Wayne High School, has become a member of the Charlotte Opera Company in the North Carolina city and has a bright future.

After just finishing a small part in "Aida" in early November, Gligoroff (pronounced Glig-or-off) has just been offered a part in the Charlotte Opera Company's spring production of "The Magic Flute."

"It's a very exciting time in my life," said the dark-haired performer of Macedonian descent.

"And if things break well for me and I am fortunate enough to make a name in opera, I want the City of Wayne to be put on the map. I also want to give full credit to Mrs. Orpha Hutty, who worked with me for 15 years in training my voice."

If Gligoroff should "suddenly" be thrust into the national operatic limelight or become an "overnight" success with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York City — it will not be a quick development. The 6-foot, 185 pound former Wayneite has struggled for most of the past 15 years, diligently studying voice and enduring continuous hours of training his vocal chords.

Gligoroff has trained his voice under the meticulous tutelage of Mrs. Hutty, who served as organist and choir director of Wayne's First Congregational Church for more than 25 years. She is a stickler for basics and the host of musical students who were blessed with her instruction bear witness of her thorough teaching.

"There were times when I honestly thought it was a waste of time to go through all the rudimentary lessons that Mrs. Hutty put me through during the 15 years she has worked with me," said Gligoroff, who stopped in Wayne over Thanksgiving holidays to visit his mother, Mrs. Lulamae Ditchkoff, who lives on Carlisle Street.

"Mrs. Hutty told me I wouldn't make a singer in 'three easy lessons' and pointed to the door, if I wasn't going to take my work with the utmost seriousness. She groomed me for the stage — she taught me how to stand, how to move, expression, everything connected with the stage. She taught me the fundamentals and I was very disappointed that things were moving so slowly, even after many years of practice," said Gligoroff in his rich, full voice.

"It took me two full years, and I was just starting to sing. But now I realize she did it the right way."

That "right way" was recognized recently when a visiting stage director from England's famous Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, was impressed with Gligoroff's stage presence. Michael Rennison, who was procured by Charlotte Opera Company for its production of "Aida", selected the former Wayne resident from a large number of candidates on stage to play the role of a guard in the play, based on Egyptian legend.

That was a big break for the dedicated opera singer and now that he's been selected to be in "The Magic Flute," his career is definitely on the rise. True, he's still in the comparative minor role of a member of the Charlotte Opera Chorus. But he was almost asked to play a lead role in "Aida" when a prominent member of the cast came down with a sore throat and barely managed to sign the part.

"I have the confidence that I can do it," he beams, his teeth shining through a broad grin. His rugged good looks lend themselves to theatrical make-up and his athletic looking build makes him an ideal prospect as a leading man in future operas.

But it was always this way for Gligoroff.

Born in Chicago on June 4, 1940, he came with his family to Dearborn in 1942, moving to Wayne in 1951. Young Carl lived on Winslow Street in Wayne and attended the former South Junior High School near Howe and Forest on the city's south side. He later attended Wayne High School, graduating in 1958.

However, he didn't take much part in activities in high school. "I loved sports and music, but I like to have my evenings free to listen to music and attend concerts. There was a recession in 1958, and I couldn't find work — I did odd jobs for about a year. Every time I could, I'd earn some money and go out and buy a record."

Young Gligoroff recalled his early years.

"I remember back in the 1940's, as a little kid I would wind up the old Victrola we had and played records. My father had classical records, some polkas, waltzes and concertos. My mother liked country and western music mainly. We also listened to the radio and the popular tunes of that day were pretty good."

Then he heard Mario Lanza sing "O Holy Night" when it was released for the holidays in November of 1951. "I heard it and immediately fell in love with it," he said. I used to come to Wayne Music Store to buy a 45 RPM record that cost a buck. I'd mow a lawn or do any odd job, grab the money and rush down to buy Lanza's latest record.

"Larry Zuckerman, co-owner of Leo's Gift and Jewelry Center on Michigan Avenue, let me do odd jobs for him and he would also give me some of Lanza's records from time to time. Larry gave me my first Italian language record — "The Great Caruso" — done by Mario Lanza in 1951. That started me into

Health department offers pregnancy, diabetes classes

Diabetics and their families can learn about the condition of diabetes mellitus, control and treatment and the relationship of diet in classes, sponsored by the Wayne County Department of Health.

The next series of classes for diabetics and their families will begin Jan. 21 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the South Health Center, 21201 Eureka Road, Taylor. It will continue for five consecutive Monday evenings.

The importance of the diabetic's cooperation with his physician is stressed along with the patient's responsibility in caring for himself in order to lead an active, normal life. All diabetics, regardless of age, may attend with written approval from their physician. Children under 14 should be accompanied by a parent.

To register for the class contact the health department at 274-2800 or 729-2211, ext. 390.

The health department also is offering two series of classes for expectant parents next month. One class will be at the South Health Center in Taylor, beginning Jan. 8. The second series will be held at the health department in Westland, beginning Jan. 9.

The classes use group discussion methods, led by a public health nurse. They will meet from 7 to 9 p.m. for six consecutive weeks. Members of the group will discuss those questions and concerns about pregnancy, labor and delivery and infant care, which are of common interest to the group as a whole.

Since the size of the group will be limited, interested persons are urged to register as early as possible. For registration or further information, call the health department at the aforementioned telephone numbers weekdays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The next series of classes will be in February at the two locations.

A decorative touch

As the days dwindle to Christmas eve, giftwrapping perks up the holiday season. Now it's time for the final touch. Here are tips on how to brighten packages in ways that are simple and fun. Select giftwrap paper most appropriate for the gift that is given, either in color, pattern or design. Top off a package with a series of loops. This can be done with any kind of ribbon. The loops can be stapled together and sealed to the top of the package with paper cement. A bow always is a decorative touch, either one that is tied on the spot, or one that is pre-tied as a "stick-on" with adhesive backing. Curling ribbon creates a cluster of "curls" to garnish a package. The ribbon can be cut to any length. When pulled along the blade of a pair of scissors, ruler or like metal object, the ribbon will curl in spirals. Christmas cards saved from previous years can add an illustrative touch to gift-giving. Designs and artwork trimmed from the original cards are pasted to the giftwrap with paper cement. These are among the personal touches that add decorative notes to holiday giftwrapping.

Rep. Law redesigns lunch program rules

They said it couldn't be done ... that the very system designed to help senior citizens was, instead, acting as a roadblock. Then came along State Rep. Robert Law (R-36th District) who grabbed the system by its horns, redesigned it, then turned it loose.

The result is that now more than 200 senior citizens from Livonia may be serviced a hot lunch meal daily, with no Wayne County Office of Aging strings attached.

The change in state law, instigated by Law, not only permitted Livonia to break away from the allegedly mismanaged county hot lunch program, but it opened the door for the remaining 41 out-county communities to start up their own locally administered programs.

"The Livonia program was far superior to the county's, both in meeting the nutritional and recreational and service needs of our community," Law said.

However, for more than two years Law, Livonia Mayor Ed McNamara and that city's senior citizen program coordinator Joan Duggan labored unsuccessfully in attempting to convince Wayne County to either upgrade its food program, or concede to sub-contract out to Livonia, allowing the city to operate the day-to-day operations.

'What we had to do was rewrite legislation...'

According to state law, any community of more than 100,000 population, or area agency, may apply for a federal Title 3 nutrition grant, funding programs such as the hot meal program. However, the law also stipulated that unless a grantee could service the entire County of Wayne, it would not be eligible as a grant applicant.

"What we had to do was rewrite legislation," Law said, "in order to take the program out of the county's hands. Wayne County's poor quality of food and service provoked Livonia seniors and their public officials to start their own program using CETA employees.

But when those CETA funds were expected to be terminated in October, the city began to scramble for alternative funding, which meant either they would have to return to the traditional funding structure, with money channeled through the state to the county and allow county government to assume control once again, or curtail the program.

"The third choice, though, was changing the law, and that's what we did," Law said.

Livonia will receive a $50,000 grant to fund a model project site, a test to determine the feasibility of the city operating a scratch cooking kitchen. Other community officials have been following the situation in Livonia ever so closely. Livonia's failure or success will play in the other community officials' decision of whether to follow suit or not, Law said.

opera. I had never been as moved by any music as I was with his record. I knew there was a lot more to this kind of music."

Carl claims he has every record and album that Mario Lanza ever recorded — numbering something in the neighborhood of 17 albums and 29 singles by the late, great tenor.

In April 1963 it was suggested that Carl go to Mrs. Hutty, who then lived on Park Street in downtown Wayne until she was moved by urban renewal. She now lives on Lotz Road in Canton and Gligoroff had just finished practicing for a couple of hours before dropping into the offices of Associated Newspapers.

He stopped by to see her because she's a "true friend" who has done much to get him on the road to a successful operatic career.

But Gligoroff also praises someone else for his opera singing. "This may sound a little funny to some people, but I feel the Lord wants me to sing for His glory," Gligoroff said seriously. "Let me tell you what happened. I could never hit high C note and it was discouraging. I prayed about it, but nothing seemed to improve."

"Then Mario Lanza died on Oct. 7, 1959 and I was saddened by his loss. However, one month later I just happened to hit high C note, and it was as if the Lord was telling me He wanted me to carry on in grand opera tradition."

"Now, don't get me wrong, I know I have an awful long way to go — even after these past 15 years of voice training. But I am a truly born-again Christian and I feel this is God's way of permitting me to glorify the Lord Jesus Christ through my singing."

Gligoroff says he gets a little tired of everyone telling him "you've got to come from Italy, or Europe, or New York or Philadelphia to be an opera star."

"Why can't an opera star come from a little city like Wayne, Michigan?" he asked rhetorically. "Just think, if I ever do hit it big as a famous opera star, they're going to know where I come from. Not from Italy, not from Europe, not from the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York City, not Philadelphia, but Wayne, Michigan, as great a place as there is in the world."

After driving a 60-ton tandem gravel train tractor for the past 18 years, Gligoroff prayed and asked God to open some doors for him to sing in opera. He contacted his sister, Georgia White, in the Charlotte, N.C. area and found an apartment in Rock Hill, about 20 miles away. Carl and his wife, Marilyn, have three children, Lynn 19; Denise, 18, who was married Nov. 24; and Robert, 13.

Gligoroff currently works in a large warehouse of Duff-Norton, a company that makes huge 150-ton hydraulic and power jacks. He works his regular job eight hours a day while he waits his big opportunity to hit it big on the opera circuit.

Through singing "The Holy City" in a church in North Carolina, Carl was asked to audition for the Charlotte Opera Chorus and was accepted. His bid to play in "The Magic Flute" is another step upward to his "impossible dream."

Carl says he works with two other employees in a giant warehouse, and he has the opportunity to sing for hours each day.

"They know where I'm from — Wayne, Michigan — and they know the driving force in my life," Gligoroff laughed.

And you can mark it down in indelible ink that if Carl Gligoroff gets a few breaks and the right opportunity, others will be saying it, too.

"Carl Gligoroff — the famous opera singer from Wayne, Michigan!"

Heavenly music floats triumphantly over the reverent and tranquil Christmas landscape . . . its glorious sounds ringing melodiously through the stillness. As all celebrate this season of eternal peace and love, we send sincere thanks to dear friends for their faith and trust.

Salem to host holiday cage tourney

Rocks matched up against unbeaten Plymouth Canton

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

Plymouth Salem cage coach Fred Thomann would like an early Christmas present — two victories in the annual Christmas Classic he's hosting Thursday and Friday.

And Friday night Thomann's Rocks will be severely tested by his arch-rivals — Plymouth Canton — in a game that could pit two undefeated squads against each other.

Salem ran its string to 3-0 Friday with a 68-55 win over Edsel Ford while Canton, under coach Craig Bell, upped its record to 2-0 with a 58-54 conquest of Northville.

In Thursday night's opener at 7 p.m., Canton will tangle with Churchill (1-2), which lost a squeaker to Waterford Mott. Salem meets Livonia Stevenson (2-1) in the nightcap. There is no champion of the tourney because Canton and Churchill are both in the Western Six League and play each other twice in the regular season.

Friday night pits Canton against Salem and Churchill against Stevenson in two arch-rivalries that should pack the Salem gym. The two Livonia schools begin Friday's double-header action at 7 p.m.

Thomann's crew did a defensive number on the T-Birds, holding them to just seven points in running up a 16-7 first quarter edge last Friday. The Rocks outdueled their visitors, 18-14, in the second stanza to hold a 34-21 halftime edge.

The T-Birds' only edge came in the third quarter, 15-13, but Salem had a 21-19 margin in the final quarter.

"We got it going defensively in the first quarter and more or less set the tempo of the game," said Thomann.

"We led by 19 points in the fourth quarter but they made a run at us and closed the gap to five points."

"However, we got it back up to 13 points at the buzzer." Center Howard Monk, a 6-5 jumper, led Salem's attack with 21 points, nine of them coming in the decisive last period. Scott Bublin got six of his 16 markers in the first quarter to get the Rocks rolling. Salem's balanced scoring did the trick as Jim Anderson fired in eight points and grabbed eight rebounds, second to Monk's 15 caroms.

Rob Neu played a tremendous two-way game, canning nine points, dishing out five assists and making four steals. Mike Sharp added a half-size markers and passed off for eight assists.

Edsel Ford, which had nine less field goals than Salem, was led by Rodney Armstrong's 12 points and 10

by Greg Jones.

"It was a great team effort and I'm very pleased with the way the boys are working together as an offensive and defensive unit," Thomann said.

Canton tuned up for Stevenson with a dogfight victory over Northville by scoring eight straight points in the last quarter. The scoring spurt broke a 45-45 tie and earned Bell's Chiefs their 58-54 Western Six League win.

The teams battled to a 15-15 knot after the first eight minutes before Canton's 14-9 second quarter edge gave it a 29-24 halftime lead. The Mustang's defense forced the Chiefs into some poor percentage shots in assuming a 39-37 third period lead by holding Canton to only eight points. However, Bell quickened the pace of his team's attack in the final stanza (Continued on Page B-4)

Coaches have their subtle, and sometimes not so subtle, ways to make officials know that they are displeased with a call or two.

And Livonia Franklin's Jim McIntyre, who comes from a basketball family and has spent most of his life watching cagers do their thing, knows a thing or two about officiating. He says he doesn't mind an official blowing a call or two.

But, and these are his words, "the kind of officiating one gets when you visit Redford Union borders on the ridiculous. It leaves a bad taste for everyone concerned."

JIM MCINTYRE

"I know there will be some people who will say it's 'sour grapes,'" McIntyre said, "but Redford Union shot a total of 45 free throws and 27 of those were in the last eight minutes. How do you justify anything like that to your team, to the kids? It's no longer a contest."

Redford Union managed to score 31 points in the last period to rally for a 76-56 victory over the visiting Livonia Franklin quintet. It was the second trip to R.U. in two years and both occasions have left McIntyre fuming.

McIntyre pointed out that the officials who called last Friday night's game, "wouldn't be hired by most of the other leagues, in fact, the Great Lakes 8 Conference have removed their names from the list of approved officials."

The two officials then are Redford Union "homers". (The name is applied to an official who favors the home team).

"I don't know what else you would call them," McIntyre said. "I really have had it with them. And so have many of our fans. We're not going to let them get away with this. It just isn't fair."

"Really don't know what you can do about it, coach. The problem with a 'homer' is that they've been problems since the beginning of time. Like those ladies of the night, you can't get rid of them."

You got to learn to live with them.

With the sudden and unexpected departure of Dave Schuele from the local grid scene, Plymouth Canton was left without a head football coach for the 1980 season.

It didn't take Plymouth Canton school officials long to find a replacement for Schuele who had his problems with the Canton Chiefs. His four-year tenure as head coach ended abruptly a month ago with his resignation. Canton had a pair of winless seasons in 1979 and 1977 and were 2-7 in 1976 and 4-5 in 1978 during the Schuele era.

Calling a press conference (who sez Canton doesn't do things right?) last Thursday, Canton introduced their new head coach to the public. He's Rich Barr, who served as a varsity assistant coach to Tom Moshimer at Plymouth Salem High.

"My attitude toward this new position will be viewed as a new challenge," Barr stated, "and I will give it the dedication, commitment, effort, knowledge and respect it deserves. The past 15 years have been extremely rewarding for me. And I've enjoyed and given my best effort to the game."

Got to wish the new coach all the luck in the world.

I have a feeling he's going to need it.

Duel under the boards

Belleville's Scott Forster (40) comes up short in this duel with an unidentified Livonia Bentley cager for the rebound. The Tigers also came out on the short end of a 65-49 Suburban 8 Conference decision Friday night, losing their third straight. Coach Tom Niemi and his cagers will try to end that skid Friday night at Dearborn, then will get ready for the annual Western Wayne Holiday Tournament which will be staged at Westland John Glenn.

Romulus '5' bows to Willow Run

"We didn't block out well," said Coach Rod Hanna after Willow Run's Flyers handed Romulus' Eagles their second consecutive setback of the young basketball campaign, 98-76. "They controlled the boards against us — and that is one thing I fear. We need to learn to go to the boards for those rebounds."

"If we are to compete against the blue chip teams, we have to learn to block out and control the boards," Hanna stressed.

Willow Run's two rugged 6-5 cagers — Keith Jackson and John Bailey appeared to be playing 'volleyball' under the boards as they combined for approximately 40 of the Flyers' points. Most of those were tip-ins.

Bailey pumped in 15 field goals and was perfect three-for-three at the throw line, while Jackson sank 12 field goals and a free throw for 25 points.

Romulus, thanks mainly to the hardworking David Casey and David Holifield's eight first period points gained the upper hand 26-24 after eight minutes. But the Flyers took command after that and raced out in front 54-42 at halftime. They increased their margin to 73-58 after three periods.

Despite a very respectable 31-of-60 or 50 percent shooting average from the floor, Romulus couldn't match their host's torrid pace which netted them a fantastic 63 percent (44 of 70) from the field.

Both teams looked good at the free throw line where the Eagles canned 14 of 17 charities as compared to the Flyer's eight of nine effort.

Casey, with 20 points and 13 rebounds, led Romulus' assault. Three of his teammates — Holifield, who tossed in 18 points, Darryl Lewis and Bobby Stewart who split

Zebras bury Riverview; trip Taylor Truman

By TOM MOORADIAN

Off to their best start in recent years, Wayne Memorial made its final trip last Tuesday to Riverview an impressive one, destroying the Pirates 94-21, then returned home Friday night and earned a 62-58 hard fought victory over Coach Frank Plecas' Eagles.

The two Great Lakes 8 Conference basketball victories boosted Wayne's overall record to 3-0 on the season. Coach Steve Schwartz and his cagers were scheduled to meet Taylor Center Tuesday night before preparing for the annual Western Wayne Holiday Tournament.

Westland John Glenn will host that tournament this year which is slated for Thursday and Friday, Dec. 27-28, at 7 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. In the first round Cherry Hill, the two-time defending champ, will meet Belleville, while Wayne will take on the host, Glenn, at 8:30 p.m.

The championship will be decided between the two winners on Friday (Dec. 28) at 8:30 p.m. There will be a consolation round at 7 p.m. between the two losers.

Coach Schwartz was not pleased with his team's over-all performance against Truman. "With the exception of the third period, we didn't play very well. And I would have to attribute it to our easy win over Riverview. That game was not the type that gets you ready for a tough one."

"Truman is the type of team that never gives up," Schwartz pointed out.

Belleville destroys Ypsilanti

It's no secret that there is an all-out war going on between Belleville High and Ypsilanti High's athletic troops.

But Ypsilanti should have sent its peace emissaries to meet with Coach Sam Vicchy before their armies met in the pool. The Tigers may have shown some mercy. But they didn't. Consequently it was definitely the worst defeat handed a Ypsi swim team by Belleville who enjoyed their fourth consecutive triumph of the campaign, 140-30.

Chris Renton, Mark Schofield and Mike Stoelton led the Belleville rout which included all 11 first places and sweeps in every events (Continued on Page B-4)

Spartan title flag at half-mast

Crestwood ruins Bogataj's league coaching debut

Cherry Hill's title flag is waving at half-mast.

But the Spartan cage fans are not shedding any tears. Not yet, anyway. As the saying goes, one loss doesn't mean the end of the season.

Especially a loss at the beginning of the season.

However, the setback did indicate that the defending Tri-River Conference champ can be beaten.

Crestwood, Cherry Hill's old nemesis, did it again to the Spartans. This time the Dearborn Heights cagers pulled off a 79-58 victory which ruined Coach Dave Bogataj's debut in the Tri-River Conference.

"We shot extremely poor," said Bogataj who said his team lost its composure in the third period when it was outscored 17-8 and never could get back in the game. "And committing a total of 31 turnovers didn't help us out any."

The Spartans made a dismal 24 of 64 shots. They were 10 of 19 at the foul line.

Cherry Hill, which won the last two versions of the Tri-River Conference championship, had problems defending a physical 6-4 Keith Rogers who held together an amalgam of Crestwood talent with his rebounding and accurate short jumpers.

Rogers nailed down eight field goals and 9-of-11 free throws for 25 points, the game's high. He and his teammates hit 24 of 44 from the field.

"They (Crestwood) shot phenomenally," said Bogataj. "We used a man-to-man defense but that didn't stop them."

It was close for the first two periods as each team scored 15 points in the initial eight minutes. Greg Thompson and Aaron Gregory paced the Spartans. Each had four points in the opening period and Gary Williams got the job done on the boards. But the Spartans lacked consistency as they paid dearly for each mistake.

Cherry Hill trailed 33-32 at the halfway mark and that is the closest they got as their hosts gunned them down in the third period (17-8) and Franklin runs into foul trouble, loses to R.U.

There's something about Redford Union that brings the "fouls" out on Livonia Franklin cagers.

Franklin was slapped with a bundle-full of personals and three technicals that paved the way for their demise Friday night at R.U.

"It was no contest," said Franklin Coach Jim McIntyre after his team lost its Northwest Suburban Conference opener, 76-56. "It was just ridiculous."

R.U. shot 27 free throws and made 17 of them in the last eight minutes of the game to pull out the victory. They were awarded 45 chances and made 30, and that was the difference in the ball game.

"We obviously lost it at the foul line," McIntyre said. "I just hate taking teams there."

Franklin had the edge 17-13 after the first eight minutes and managed to stay out in front 31-30 at halftime. The Patriots however fell behind 45-41 after three periods. Personal fouls then took their toll as Jeff Weber and Tim Prsysiecki fouled out for the Patriots.

Jon McCarthy snapped out of his scoring slump and paced the Patriots with 23 points, scoring on eight field goals and seven of nine at the foul line. But he was the only Franklin cager in double figures.

Glenn Roberts, deadily at the charity stripe where he hit on 13 of 14, wound up with 27 points, the game's individual high scorer. Roberts was one of three R.U.

cagers who finished up in double figures.

Earlier in the week, Franklin won its first of the season by turning back Garden City West 53-42 behind Weber's 21 points and Bob Gohl's 18.

The Patriots will take on winless Westland John Glenn Friday night in a game seen as crucial by McIntyre.

"We're both floundering," McIntyre said. "And we both need the victory."

'Watch dog'

A Livonia Bentley Bulldog, Ed Boris (at left) keeps his eyes on a shifty Belleville guard, Glenn Johnson. And for good reason. Johnson pumped in 17 points, the game high.

Friday night against their Suburban 8 Conference rivals, but it was a wasted performance as the visitors came away with a 65-49 victory.

Niemi has hand on panic button

Tom Niemi has his hand on the panic button.

But whether he pushes it will probably depend on the outcome of Friday night's game with Suburban 8 Conference rival, Dearborn.

"There's been one quarter that has killed us in each of our games so far," Niemi said after his Tigers dropped their third consecutive decision 65-49 to Livonia Bentley Friday night. "We have been able to stay with these teams — and they have been tough ones — but we don't seem to be able to mount enough offense to break away."

Two of their losses — a 59-51 decision last Tuesday to Plymouth Salem, and Friday's setback at home are to pre-season conference title favorites. Friday night's encounter at Dearborn could be pivotal for the Tigers.

"It's difficult to play Dearborn at Dearborn," Niemi said. "I feel if we can win one it will give our team the confidence it needs."

Belleville's shifty and sharp-shooting guard, Glenn Johnson, kept the Tigers in the Bentley game. Johnson sank seven field goals and made three of four free throws for 17 points, the game's high.

But Johnson didn't have any kind of supporting cast. Except for Scott Straight's seven rebounds and six points, the rest of the Tigers could have just as well taken the night off.

Bentley, behind a balanced scoring attack which featured four players — Kurt Thorderson, Ed Boris, John Bednarski and Craig Evans — in double figures, shot its way to a 14-8 first period lead and widened it to 32-10 at halftime.

Bentley played "protect-the-lead" conservative ball the second half and emerged with 15-14 and 18-16 edges for the next two periods.

Belleville gave Salem, the defending champ, something to worry about in their Tuesday night encounter. The Rocks trailed after

Salem dominates Glenn invitational

Scoring 37 points more than its closest challenger, Plymouth Salem successfully defended its Westland John Glenn Wrestling Invitational title and established itself as the team to beat on the mats in The Associated Newspapers' area.

Coach Ron Kruger's Rocks piled up 213 points to beat host, Glenn, and 14 other teams that had gathered for the 12th annual tournament held Saturday.

It was the second successive year that the Westlanders finished in the runner-up berth.

"We received very good efforts from all of our people," Glenn Coach Bob Lusk commented, "but Plymouth Salem has an outstanding team with good balance."

Salem also had the tournament's Most Valuable Wrestler, Jim Schultz, a 105-pound senior who pinned Vince Condino of East Detroit in 2:42 to earn the championship.

Schultz' teammates Mark Ross

(126) also came off the mats with a gold medal.

Glenn produced three individual weight class champs. Ken Hodges, who got a taste of international competition last summer, showed he is the class of the 155-pound wrestlers in this area as he outwrestled Salem's Scott Piper 8-4.

Hodges' teammate Keith Zimmerman had his hands full with New Boston Huron's versatile athlete, Bob Bokor, but Zimmerman pulled out a close 6-5 decision to win the 167-pound title.

The Westlanders also had the best wrestler in the 198-pound class where Gary Black earned a 9-4 victory over Farmington Harrison's Mark Kerastas.

Glenn will repay Salem's visit after the New Year when Lusk's grapplers compete in the Salem Invitational scheduled for Jan. 5. Glenn and arch-rival, Wayne Memorial, met head-on in a dual meet Tuesday night.

Area mat powers gather for Ott tourney

Shell, Glass are runners-up at Toledo Rogers

Take your pick: Plymouth Salem, Montrose Jill-McLoy, Trenton.

One of the three teams, according to those who know, will be the next Ott Invitational wrestling champion.

The tournament will be held beginning at 11 a.m. at Wayne Memorial on Saturday, Dec. 22. The finals for the third annual invitational, which will bring together eight teams, are scheduled for 7 p.m.

Salem is coming off of an impressive victory at the Westland John Glenn Tournament and Trenton was recently runner-up at a 12-team dual meet which the Trojans hosted. Montrose is a perennial wrestling powerhouse. That's why the three teams should figure in the championship.

Others who will join the pre-tourney favorites are Adrian, Belleville, Garden City West, Redford Thurston, and the host Wayne.

Meanwhile, Wayne brushed up for the tournament by finishing seventh at the prestigious Toledo Rogers Holiday Invitational which brought together some of the top prep teams in Ohio and Michigan.

Temperance Bedford, the reigning Class A Michigan champ who has won the last two state titles, came away from Toledo with the team championship. Oregon Clay of Ohio was runner-up.

"My immediate reaction is one of disappointment for our team showing," said Wayne Memorial coach John Wood. "However, I feel the experience we gained in this tournament will help us out in the long run."

Wayne did receive a pair of outstanding performances. Dave Shell, a 105-pounder, finished second to Toledo Whitmer's Rudy Mann, losing a heart-stopping, 6-5, decision in the finals. Teammate Joe Glass also finished second, handing over the gold to Trenton's Steve Pierce, 12-9.

Wayne also came home with a fourth place medal thanks to 138-pounder Lou Toarmina and Frank Turgeon was sixth in the 132-pound class.

Belleville's Cook strikes gold at Ypsi tournament

Undeclared in dual meet competition, Belleville picked up a gold medal and a fifth place team finish at the 16-team Ypsilanti Wrestling Invitational over the weekend.

Coach Gerald Malecek's Tigers chalked up 122 points and finished behind champ, Davidson (217), Oscoda (169), Farmington (130) in the final standings. Belleville had 122 points.

Steege Cook, an All-Area grappler a year ago, proved he's to be reckoned with in the 198-pound class as he defeated Al Kjelstrom of North Farmington, 13-7, in the finals for Belleville's lone first place.

Belleville also picked up a second place thanks to Danny Kelly who lost a 5-0 decision to Annapolis' Dave Sullivan in the finals. John Enzenauer was third for the Tigers at 155.

Earlier in the week, Belleville clashed with Ypsilanti in a dual meet and the collision produced an easy 46-17 Tiger triumph. The Tigers also disposed of Ann Arbor Huron 55-12 and they should have no problem with Taylor Kennedy, their next dual meet opponents.

Wayne cagers are looking good earned a 14-13 edge after eight minutes, but Truman tied it up at 27-all before the intermission. The Zebras came back after the half and pumped in the first five baskets as Darryl Jordan found the range on two jumpers, Bob Kost also banked in a pair of shots, and Jamie Barber connected on one to pull the hosts up by nine (49-40) after three periods.

But Truman cut the Wayne lead to three points as the Zebras committed two crucial turnovers and missed the tail end of three one-and-one shots. Greg Reynolds settled the issue when he slipped in a free throw with eight seconds left to lift Wayne up by four.

Jordan had 18 points to lead all scorers and Kost finished with 12 while Barber added 13.

Schwartz played all 14 of his minutes in the rout over Riverview which is leaving the league in the fall to join the Huron Conference. Never in question after Wayne built up a 21-7, 26-4 and 26-8 in the last three periods.

Jordan and Barber split 22 points, while Andy Daily and Reynolds each had 10 points for the winners.

Barber, a 6-3 senior, made his first start against Taylor Truman, and appears to have nailed down a starting forward spot.

"He played an excellent game for us," commented Coach Schwartz. "He contributed offensively and also picked off 10 rebounds."

Flyers shoot down Romulus

28 points between them — reached double figures.

Romulus' modest two-game winning streak ended earlier in the week when Ann Arbor Pioneer rallied for a narrow 73-70 victory over the Eagles. The Eagles actually lost their first one of the season at the free throw lines where the Pioneers made 19 of 28 chances as compared to the host's four of nine performance.

Ahead 19-14 after the first eight minutes, Romulus managed to hold a slim margin, 34-33, at intermission. The Eagles fattened their lead to 57-49 for three periods.

But Pioneer outscored Romulus 24-13 in the last period, getting 12 of those key points at the free throw line.

"We gave this game away," Coach Hanna. "We had four missed lay-ups, three of those in the fourth period. And we also had a bundle of turnovers."

Casey again emerged as the team's top scorer, collecting 23 to share individual game scoring honors with Pioneers' Dave James. Holfield chipped in with 17 points and Stewart added 13.

Romulus will end the year on the road at Oak Park and then break for the holidays.

"We have a lot of work ahead of us, especially on the boards," Hanna said. "We have problems but they can be worked out."

Over '30' hockey

Extra Point's scoring rampage earns a share of first place

While it was all quiet on the Borkowski front, the hockey wars in the Berrington Division of the Wayne-Westland Over 30 League continued to remain in the limelight.

Extra Point Bar and Tasee Freez now share top billing in the Berrington Division and Tasee Freez has only itself to blame. It had its chance to break away but a hard-fought Extra Point earned a crucial 5-1 victory over their arch-rivals and the division lead is now deadlocked.

Extra Point has compiled four wins, lost six for eight points, while Tasee Freez has 3-5-2 won-lost-tied ratio, also good for eight points.

The Pointers were also able to keep the league-leading scorer, Terry Carley, off the score sheet. Dave Fishwick fired in two goals to pace the winner's assault and Jack Bockstanz, Barry Anderson and Paul Cramer chipped in with one apiece.

Extra Point goalie Jim Gibson lost his shutout bid in the second period when Mo Paquet fired in what proved to be the co-leader's lone goal.

Meanwhile, Futurama Engineering continues to dominate the other division as it blasted Jack's Sports Center, 5-0. The whitewash was the fourth of the campaign by goalie Tim Vandenberg.

Dave Frankling stayed "hot" on the ice as he came up with two goals and two assists. Teammate Danny Thomas contributed a pair of goals, and Gordie Herbst connected for the other tally.

Johnson Carbonic kept its title hopes alive with a narrow 5-4 victory over Brock Homes. Carbonic almost blew it as they gave up two goals in the final three minutes of the game. Dave Zajac led the late rally, driving home a couple of goals.

However, Johnson's managed to hold on to secure their sixth victory in 10 starts. For Brock's, it was their fourth one-goal setback of the campaign. Ron Johnson and Jerry Robertson each scored two goals for the winners while Nick Palise chalked up the other score. Zajac finished the night with a hat trick, his first of the season. Teammate Tom Diaura got the other goal.

The Jock Shop spotted Jake's Lounge three goals in the first period then frantically skated back to earn a 4-4 tie on Art Cazon's late third period goal. Jerry Grube's two goals and one by Dennis Broze accounted for the Jock's scoring. Jake's received goals from Larry Kaifesh, Nelson Vandenberg, Corky Hays and Paul Briski.

The teams will be back on the ice Sunday night as Tasee Freez will try to hold on to its share of first place when it takes on Brock's Homes at 8:30 p.m. in the Westland Rink. Jack's Sporting Center and Jake's clash in the 10 p.m. nightcap.

Over in Wayne Arena, Futurama will seek its 10th victory at the expense of the Jock Shop (9 p.m.), while Johnson's and Extra Point Bar have a 10:30 p.m. meeting.

and they responded with a 21-15 edge and the victory.

Brad Westin, Canton's 6-4 center, canned six of his 13 game points to get them started in the first quarter. Sean Houle, his 6-4 mate at forward, picked up the tempo and sank six of his game-high 16 in the second stanza. Guard Scott Adler was the third Chief in double figures with 10 points.

For Northville, their high-scoring 6-4 forward, Mike Wagner, who had 26 points against Farmington, was held to just 12 by Dave Visser, who did an excellent defensive job. Guard Dave Greer led Northville with 16 points and 6-6 center Dave Ward had a dozen.

"We had a lot of respect for Mike Wagner going into the game — he'd scored 26 against Farmington," said Bell. "But Dave (Visser) did a great defensive job in holding him to 12 points, while scoring nine himself."

Visser, a good scorer in his own right, settled for less points by guarding Northville's best scorer, Bell said. Also, Visser had seven of his nine points in the decisive final quarter.

With the score tied, 45-all with four minutes left, Canton ripped the nets with eight consecutive points to gain the winner's margin. However, the fighting Mustangs narrowed the gap to 56-54 before Canton stalled out the clock and sank the final basket.

"I'm very optimistic about our season," said Coach Bell after the game. Canton went 17-5 last season, winning the Western Six League title with a perfect 10-0 mark.

"I'm very happy with the unselfish play of Visser and the rest of our team. Westin sank a vital 3-point play in the last quarter for us. All the boys hustled and played tough defensively, that's very important," Bell said.

JULIE JENSEN

Westlander top swimmer in Pa. Meet

Westlander Julie Jensen, competing in Pittsburgh, Penn. in the Bethel Park Invitational, picked up another High Point Trophy for her over-all performance.

The young swimmer, who is coached by Bob Smott, scored a first place in the 100-yard individual medley with a time of 1:23.4 which staked her to the coveted High-Point Award. She also touched in first for the 25-yard backstroke with a clocking of 17.7.

Miss Jensen finished second in the 25-yard freestyle with a time of 15.3, was third in the 25-yard butterfly (16.8) and trailed in fourth in the 25-yard breaststroke with a 20.2 effort.

Julie has been competing in national and international AAU competition for over four years.

Wayne tankers off to fast start

Coach Jim McPartlin's young explosive swim team launched the 1979-80 season with a 102-72 non-conference dual meet victory over Farmington last week.

McPartlin, whose last three teams have won the Great Lakes 8 Conference championships, noted that his inexperienced swimmers "have a lot of potential."

"But we are definitely a young team this year," the Wayne coach said, "and we have a lot of work ahead of us."

McPartlin sees Wyandotte and Monroe as teams that could spoil Wayne's plans for an unprecedented fourth consecutive league title. "They have a lot of veteran swimmers coming back," he said.

Steve Matheny keyed Wayne's victory in the opener as he turned in a double win, taking the 200-yard freestyle in 1:55.8, and claiming the 500-yard freestyle in 5:19.3.

Wayne however picked up only six of the 11 first places. The Zebras had to rely on their depth to overcome the Inkster-Lakes Conference representative.

After taking on area rival Cherry Hill Tuesday night, the Zebras will be off until Saturday when they are scheduled to compete in a triangular meet against Dearborn Heights Crestwood and Garden City West. Both teams are coached by former Wayne swimmer — Danny Butler has replaced veteran West coach George Hanosh, while John Lewandowski has taken over at Crestwood.

polished up thanks to a 28-18 last period. Neither Thompson nor Gregory lasted until the final whistle. Both fouled out.

Gregory picked up 16 points, the team's high, while Thompson chipped in 11 and Williams contributed 10 points and an equal number of rebounds.

Scheduled to meet Southgate (another league rival) Tuesday night, Cherry Hill will return to the hardwood on Thurs., Dec. 27 at Westland John Glenn when they play Belleville in the first round of the Western Wayne Holiday Tour, nament. The game is scheduled for 7 p.m. At 8:30 p.m., Wayne plays host, Westland John Glenn.

The championship will be decided the following night (Fri., Dec. 28) at 8:30 p.m. Preceding the finals, the losers of the first round will clash in a consolation round.

Renton turned in winning times for the 200 yard freestyle (2:12.2) and the 100-yard backstroke (57.2). Both performances qualified him for the state finals.

Earlier in the week Belleville turned back Livonia Franklin 59-34 in a nonleague meet.

Belleville met Plymouth Canton, the defending Western Six Conference champ, Tuesday night for its final dual meet in 1979. However before the Tigers disperse for the Christmas Holidays they will host their annual Alumni Meet. That's set for 7 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 20 and such former Belleville greats as Jeff and Chris Liedel, Jim and Dean Ackron and the Susterka brothers — Brad and Barry — will be on hand to compete for the alumni.

What comes after 31,200?

That is a pretty big number to count on little fingers! It is the number of individual Classified Ads we published in 1979.

Our staff is pleased and proud to have provided the important service to our community which this number of ads represents.

The number which comes after 31,200 is the number "one," because we started to count all over again on January first, as the year 1980 began. It is our hope that as the count mounts up as the year goes on, we will be able to count your ad or ads in the total.

Placing an ad in Classified is as easy as dialing your telephone. Just give us a call and we'll help you word and place your ad for best response.

P.S. When you run as many ads as we do, you really don't count them on your fingers!

A Christmas Prayer

Let us pray that strength and courage abundant be given to all who work for a world of reason and understanding & that the good that lies in every man's heart may day by day be magnified & that men will come to see more clearly not that which divides them, but that which unites them & that each hour may bring us closer to a final victory, not of nation over nation, but of man over his own evils and weaknesses & that the true spirit of this Christmas Season—its joy, its beauty, its hope, and above all its abiding faith—may live among us & that the blessings of peace be ours—the peace to build and grow, to live in harmony and sympathy with others, and to plan for the future with confidence.
